IMPORTANT EVIDENCE OF SUCCESS.

Knowing from experience that proofs of successful treatment are the most desirable credentials to public confidence which a physician can produce, Dr. LIGHTHILL is pleased to present a few specimens of the many certificates of cures which he received in the course of his practice. Thousands of testimonials of a similar character, and emanating from the most reliable sources, will be cheerfully submitted on application.

FROM MR. MORRIS PHILLIPS,
Editor and Proprietor of the Home Journal.

OFFICE OF THE HOME JOURNAL, No. 1 Park-place, New-York.

I testify with pleasure to the success which attended Dr. LIGHTHILL'S treatment in the case of my brother, who had been affected with deafness and noises in the head. The results of Dr. LIGHTHILL'S applications were as prompt as they were effective. The hearing was restored, the noises removed, and the cure was as radical as it has since proved permanent.

Rector of All Saints Church.

NO. 29 GOUVERNEUR-ST., NEW-YORK.

Dr. Lighthill:

DEAR SIR: It is with great pleasure I tender you this acknowledgment of my appreciation of the benefit I have derived from your treatment. I present it, that others who may be suffering from like causes as myself, may, through the publication of my experience, learn that under your care relief can be obtained.

I have been afflicted with Catarrh for many years, which at one time threatened the loss of my voice, and undermined my general health to such an extent as to necessitate a suspension of my pastoral duties. Two months of your medical treatment, however, afforded me such invaluable relief that I was enabled to resume my duties and perform them without the slightest inconvenience.

Having the highest appreciation of your medical skill, and with many thanks for uniform kindness and courtesy, I am, dear Sir, yours very gratefully,

S. J. CORNEILLE,
Rector All Saints Church.

NEW-YORK, Dec. 18, 1871.

Dr. Lighthill:

DEAR SIR: From personal experience, I am certify to the efficacy of your admirable method of treating diseases of the air-passages. A chronical affection of the head and bronchial tubes, under which I labored for many years, and which at times occasioned very serious distress, was entirely cured by your treatment, nor have any of the symptoms returned, though it is now more than three years since I have been under your professional care. You can refer to me whenever you have occasion to do so, and make whatever use you desire of this statement.

Very truly yours, J. N. PATTISON.

FROM MR. J. BERNHEIM,
No. 19 Brevoort-place, (East 10th-st.)

NEW-YORK, Dec. 4, 1871.

Dr. LIGHTHILL effected a complete and radical cure in my family in a case of discharge from the ears and partial deafness, in which the best European skill was employed without avail. The difficulty yielding readily to Dr. LIGHTHILL'S skillful attendance, and time has proved the permanency of the cure.

J. BERNHEIM.

FROM REV. JOHN HOTT, D. D.,
Professor in Union College, Schenectady.

I had from infancy one very deaf ear, which always discharged more or less offensive matter, and was the source of the greatest annoyance and discomfort to me. Last year the other ear also became diseased, and both ears discharged a yellow matter, very profuse and highly offensive. My hearing became very much impaired, and the discharge produced the greatest debility of body and depression of spirits. I applied to my family physician and other practitioners, without deriving any benefit, and almost despaired of being restored to health, when, providentially, I applied to Dr. LIGHTHILL. Under his treatment my ears began to improve at once, and continued to do so until, in a comparatively short time, both ears were healed, the discharge removed, and my hearing restored. At first I feared the cure would not be permanent, or that the stoppage of a discharge of so long standing might prove detrimental to my general health—a fear which I find a great many entertain in regard to the removal of discharge from the ear. My experience, however, has proved conclusively that my apprehensions were entirely groundless in both respects, for both ears are as well and my hearing is as good at present as the day I left off treatment, and the stoppage of discharge, instead of proving detrimental to my health, has given me the highest elasticity and vigor to my body, and a flow of spirits not experienced for many years.

I avail myself of this opportunity of again publicly expressing my deeply-felt gratitude to Dr. LIGHTHILL, whom I esteem as a gentleman and a man of science, in whom the highest confidence may be placed.

JOHN HOTT.

Utter Defeat of all the Ring Combinations.

Proceedings of the Republican Caucus Yesterday.

Hon. Henry Smith, of Albany, Nominated for Speaker.

Jas. Terwilliger for Clerk of the Senate.

Both Tweed and Fields Conspicuously Absent.

Gen. Barlow Looking Sharp After the Corrupt Judges.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 1.—The Republican caucus this morning resulted, as indicated in last night's dispatch to the TIMES, in the nomination of HENRY SMITH, of Albany, for Speaker on the first ballot. If the friends of ALVORD felt half as confident of the success of their candidate as they have tried to make people believe during the last forty-eight hours, they must be terribly disappointed at the result. During Friday and Saturday, when only twenty-five or thirty members had arrived in town, the Alvord men had everything their own way, and succeeded in making credulous outsiders believe that he was to walk over the course; but the fact was the canvass did not really commence until last evening, and by noon today it was virtually decided. When the members from the more retired sections of the State outside of the immediate influence of the Central Railroad and Canal Ring began to come in, it was found that they were bent on the election of a Speaker whom they believed to be, first of all an honest man, and one entirely free from any connection with the corrupt influences that have controlled the last two Legislatures. Especially were they determined that he should be a man who had never even been suspected of affiliation with the Tammany Ring, and who would earnestly try to carry out the work of Reform, both the legislative and municipal, which the people so emphatically demanded at the November election. The feeling among members was so general and pronounced as to be beyond the reach of the moneyed combinations and lobby influence that were working for ALVORD, and it soon became evident to the knowing ones among his friends that his chances were hopeless; but they still tried to make up in brag and bluster what they lacked in votes, and even within an hour of the meeting of the caucus some of the deluded Fenton men and Tammany Republicans were foolishly offering to bet two to one on ALVORD'S nomination. To say that the result of the caucus is gratifying to the honest element of the Republican Party but feebly expresses the feeling here. It has produced the most intense rejoicing, both in and out of the Legislature, among those who had the cause of Reform and the future success of the Republican Party at heart. Of course the soreheaded corruptionists will try to explain it in their usual way, by prating about Custom-house influence, as they did when they got so signally defeated at the State Convention; but that has been reiterated so long that it has become stale, and only excites contempt for those who continue to repeat it. The truth is, all the corrupt influences that were brought to bear in the contest were against the winning candidate. The opponents of SMITH had not only all the moneyed combinations and rings working for their candidate, but the entire Democratic Party, with the exception of a few Reform members from New-York, sympathized with them in the struggle, and are lugubrious at their defeat. The honest people of both parties throughout the State cannot but rejoice, as they do here in Albany, that the Legislature which is to meet to-morrow will open with the jobbers defeated in a contest for the Speakership. It may be safely calculated that the fifty men who voted for HENRY SMITH having withstood the temptations held out to them, will be proof against corruption throughout the session. Another thing the people may be assured of, and that is that no single important committee will be so made up as to give the Anti-Reform element controlling power in it. As a matter of courtesy, and in accordance with long established custom, Mr. ALVORD, the defeated candidate for Speaker, will doubtless be given the Chairmanship of the Committee of Ways and Means, but this, as well as all the other committees, will have reformers and anti-corruptionists for a majority of its members. No pledges or promises have been made to any one by Mr. SMITH, and, as he remarked this evening, he has not yet decided upon a single name for either one of the committees; but he is known to be thoroughly in sympathy with the incorruptible Republicans of the Legislature, and fully determined to do all he can to make the present Legislature fulfill the expectation of the people. He says he is bitterly opposed to the custom that has prevailed for several years past of adjourning the Assembly over from Friday to Monday night during the first two-thirds of the session, and then crowding the great bulk of legislation into the last three or four weeks. He even expressed himself in favor of proceeding to work immediately, before the committees are appointed, and sending Bills directly to the Committee of the Whole for action. He thinks the New-York Charter might and ought to be immediately presented and discussed in Committee of the Whole, and if there is any complete draft of a charter ready, he will do all he can to have it taken up forthwith. The probability is however that a majority of members will favor an adjournment after to-morrow until the committees are formed, which will not be before the beginning of next week. Gen. BARLOW, the new Attorney-General, is here and will make such suggestions with regard to certain legislation affecting the New-York Ring and Ring Judges as he deems of importance. He favors a regular process of impeachment of the corrupt Judges rather than removal by resolution, because by impeachment the Judges are immediately suspended from office pending the result of the trial. His object is to deprive them of the exercise of judicial functions as soon as possible, having little doubt of his ability to fully sustain the articles of impeachment on the trial. BOSS TWEED and TOM FIELDS have both failed to put in an appearance thus far, and no one appears to KNOW whether they intend to favor the Legislature with their presence this Winter or not. TWEED has not engaged rooms at any of the hotels yet, and his old quarters at the Delevan House have been occupied since last night by HORACE GREELEY.

Midnight.—Mr. GREELEY has gone back to New-York on the night train, solitary and alone, bereft even of the companionship of MARK LEMRIGAN, his fellow-traveler from New-York hither on Sunday night. I have just learned the history of Mr. GREELEY'S mission to Albany. His appearance here late on Sunday night was a surprise to many, as he had stated positively to several of Mr. SMITH'S friends that he should not visit the capital pending the contest for the Speakership, and should take no personal part in it. The reason for his changing his mind was this: The dispatches from here on Saturday night which appeared in the New-York papers of Sunday morning, all represented ALVORD'S prospects to be bright, and some of them left no doubt whatsoever of his election. Private dispatches to sundry Tammany Republicans were to the same tenor. The hopes of the Greeley Committee were consequently raised to a high pitch, and WALDO HUTCHINS, JOHN J. GREELEY and others immediately called on GREELEY and told him he must repair to Albany forthwith. The election of ALVORD, they said, could be and must be represented as a defeat of the Administration, and a blow to Gen. GRANT. GREELEY concurred fully in that view, and came on post-haste, Sunday, in company of, as previously reported, MARK LEMRIGAN. The first thing he did Monday morning was to induce PRINCE, of Queens, to withdraw and turn what strength he had over to ALVORD. This he succeeded in accomplishing so far as PRINCE himself was concerned; but it was a more difficult task for PRINCE to carry his friends over to ALVORD than to go himself, and the result showed that but once Prince may, besides PRINCE himself, voted for ALVORD. That, however, was thought to be sufficient, and feeling sure, as they all did, that ALVORD would be elected, arrangements were made to surround Mr. GREELEY at the Delevan House after the adjournment of the caucus. The band was engaged, and Mr. GREELEY'S speech was prepared, when the unexpected defeat of "Old Salt" spoiled the entire arrangement, and caused Mr. GREELEY'S hasty departure. Mr. GREELEY had prepared a speech, which, it is said, was to have treated the election of ALVORD as a signal defeat of the Administration, and taking the keynote from H. G., the sorehead Republican journals throughout the country were to trumpet it abroad as another evidence of the waning popularity of Gen. GRANT. It was a nicely-arranged programme, but like most of the programmes of the soreheads, it failed for lack of popular support. The Greeley Committee will have to try a new scheme.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

The Republican Senate caucus met in Senate Chamber, WOODIN in the Chair, and nominated the following Senate officers, to be voted for to-morrow: Clerk—James Terwilliger, Syracuse; Sergeant-at-Arms, after six ballotings—Col. Loomis, Chenango; Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms and Postmaster, Herman Aulmen, of Jefferson; Assistant Postmaster, Capt. John Laidlaw, Cattaraugus. Door-keepers—Mr. Schraw, of Oneida; Col. Younge, of Orange; R. Stout, of Oswego; Samuel Hurlburt, L. L. Chaffee, Thos. J. Bridges and John D. Seunergan, Janitor of Capitol—Wm. H. Johnson, of Albany. Colored keeper of Senate Chamber—Jeruntan Pierce. Committee to call future caucuses—Messrs. Robertson, D. P. Wood and Lewis. On motion of D. P. Wood, it was resolved that the Standing Committees of the Senate be appointed. Adjourned.

The Republican Assembly caucus met in the Assembly Chamber. HORATIO N. TWOMBLY, of New-York, was called to the chair. The Chairman briefly thanked the caucus, and trusted the proceedings would be conducted for the best interests of the State and the Republican Party.

On motion of Mr. STRAHAN, CHARLES B. MORTON, of Kings, and IRA D. BROWN, of Cayuga, were appointed Secretaries.

On motion the Chair appointed Messrs. HART and HAWKINS tellers.

On motion of Mr. ALVORD the roll was called, and found only four members absent.

On motion an informal ballot for candidate for Speaker was ordered.

Mr. BURRIS, of Onondaga, in a brief but eloquent speech, nominated Hon. THOMAS G. ALVORD, of Onondaga, for Speaker. Mr. RUSH C. HAWKINS said:

So long as the political history of the State of New-York is remembered, so long will the 7th day of last November form one of the greatest epochs in our political history. It was nothing more nor less than another grand uprising of the people of this great State, who marched to the front when Fort Sumter was fired upon. That was simply a rebellion of arms, an exhibition of physical force. Not so in 1871. When we fled we in 1871 to meet all the corruptionists of Tammany Hall, villainous, black and corrupt. That is the force we have got to meet during the whole session of this Legislature. While the head of the monster is bruised, he still lives and is powerful. To-morrow you will see what you have only to look at the lobbies of the hotels of this city today. The most important step to take in the organization of this Legislature is to elect the right man for Speaker. In order to elect the right man we must nominate him here, to-night, in this caucus, because the Republican Party once more reigns supreme. [Applause.] If we make the fatal mistake of electing a man of easy political virtue, or a man whose political record does not stand above reproach, the fault is ours, and our constituents will hold us responsible. I come here as a representative of the honesty, intelligence and earnestness of the better class of the people of the City of New-York. That element has not been represented here before for a long time. I don't propose to vote for any man for Speaker, or for any officer or measure this Winter that is not above reproach in every particular. I go in for honest, capable men that cannot be corrupted; men that believe in the doctrine that any Ring, many Rings, say Central Park Ring, say Canal Ring, or any Ring known to the politics of the State. I do not care how long a man may have been in political harness, unless his record is clear; the man we nominate to-night should be like Cæsar's wife, above suspicion. Our eyes to-night effect more than the State of New-York. The eyes of the whole country, I speak say of the whole world, are upon us. We must not shrink from our duty. I have the honor to nominate Hon. HENRY SMITH for Speaker. [Applause.]

Mr. MILES, of Westchester, in a few remarks, named L. BRADFORD PRINCE, of Queens, as candidate. Mr. PRINCE, after returning thanks, withdrew his name.

Mr. HUSTED said: Mr. Chairman, it was not my intention to say a word to-night in this caucus. All the members of this House who have seen fit within the past three days will certainly know that I have not been an entirely independent action. I intended, Sir, to convey that position to-night, until by implication, by insinuation, by innuendo, a gentleman rose upon this floor and sought to cast reflections upon the character of one of the subscribers of the pamphlet and one of the best men in the City of New-York. [Applause.] The Republican Party has twice lifted when it lowered T. G. ALVORD by making him Lieutenant-Governor. The Republican Party in Onondaga honored itself by sending to this House its bravest and ablest citizen, and any man who would rise on this floor and question his Republicanism, or his integrity should forever after allow his tongue to be blistered in silence. [Applause.] I trust that THOMAS G. ALVORD will receive the cordial and enthusiastic support of this body.

Mr. SPRINGSTEAD, of Albany, seconded the nomination of HENRY SMITH. An informal ballot was then had, and it stood—For SMITH, 50; for ALVORD, 42; scattering, 3. The announcement of this result called forth prolonged cheers and applause. Mr. ALVORD said:

While I regret the allusions made here to-night, I desire to say that it does not lower my respect or esteem for the honorable gentleman from Albany. For a long time we have been warm personal friends. I know of no man in the State whom I would desire more to honor. An expression has been made here upon a informal ballot. I trust, with the best of feelings, that the result of that vote I have received. I may be permitted to state that the resolution of Mr. HENRY SMITH, in which I concur, about equipment, which would come upon us, and which I trust will be adopted, may be interpreted by some as a reflection upon me. I trust that the resolution will be adopted, and that the Committee on Equipment will be made up of men who will be able to do the work. I thank you, gentlemen, for the honor you have done me, and hope that the work of this session may be so performed as to redound to the honor of the State and the Republican Party.

The applause was renewed. The Chair put the motion and it was carried unanimously.

On motion, an informal ballot was had for Clerk, and it stood: C. S. UNDERWOOD, Cayuga, 26; E. JOHNSON, of Steuben, 25; E. F. UNDERHILL, of Chautauqua, 22; A. E. COLE, of Allegheny, 8. The name of COLE was withdrawn. Mr. MILES, of Westchester, read a note from UNDERHILL withdrawing in favor of JOHNSON.

Another ballot was had, which stood: UNDERWOOD, 50; JOHNSON, 38; UNDERHILL, 8. The nomination of UNDERWOOD was made unanimous.

On motion, an informal ballot for Sergeant-at-Arms was moved, but ALBERGER's nomination of PHILIP J. REMSENBERG was found to be so popular that it was made by acclamation.

The following were then nominated: Door-keepers—EUGENE I. DEMERS, of Rensselear; JAMES E. LEE, of Cayuga, and JAMES HOGAN.

On motion of J. D. BROWN, HUDSON C. BAUNER, of Oswego, was nominated for Stenographer.

On motion of Mr. BEMUS the Chair was authorized to appoint a committee of five to call future caucuses. The Chair appointed Messrs. Bemus, Hawkins, Husston, Hart and Lobeg. Caucus then adjourned.

The Democratic Assembly caucus met in the chamber of the Court of Appeals; D. B. HILL in the chair. Hon. JOHN C. JACOBS, of Kings, was nominated for Speaker, and all the officers of the last House were renominated. The Democrats of the Senate held no caucus.

Burning of One of the Grinnell College Buildings.

A private letter gives information that one of the buildings connected with Grinnell (Iowa) College, known as East College, was destroyed by fire on Saturday night, Dec. 23. It was one of the oldest buildings on the grounds. Fortunately, the museum, which is considered the best west of Ann Arbor, Mich., and was collected by Prof. E. W. PARKER, now of Amherst College, was saved, though some of the articles got rough usage. A new and valuable chemical apparatus, recently brought over from Germany, was also saved. The contents of the armory were destroyed. The fire was caused by a pine wash-stand taking fire on account of being too near a stove. The flames were extinguished by the students, who went to bed afterward, but the fire again broke out, and then the destruction of the building was complete. The building was insured for $10,000, and the cabinet for $1,500.

Ministerial Reception by President Thiers—Creation of a New Bank.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—President THIERS gave the usual reception to the Diplomatic body today. Count VON ARNIM, the German representative, was absent for the reason that he had not yet presented his credentials as Ambassador of Germany to the President. No speeches were made; President THIERS simply exchanged the customary congratulations with the Ministers. Negotiations are on foot for the creation of a Banque des Communes, with a colossal capital. One firm has already subscribed 50,000,000 of francs. The object of the institution is to utilize the credit of the Communes for municipal purposes. The Minister of the Interior has forbidden the sale of political caricatures.

Gen. SHERMAN and Lieut. GRANT arrived at Marseilles yesterday, from Gibraltar.

THE WHARTON TRIAL.

Conflicting Medical Testimony—The Tests to Which the Supposed Poison was Subjected Considered Insufficient.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 1.—The Court met at the regular time today, and although the technical nature of the evidence prevented the open display of intense interest on the part of the spectators, still the room was well filled, and even when the testimony included dry scientific formulæ, it was listened to with marked attention. The examination of Dr. GENTH was resumed. He agreed substantially with Prof. MCCULLOCH, that the inability of Prof. AIKEN to obtain metal antimony showed that his test was insufficient to prove what he had attempted to. He was followed by Dr. JOHN REESE, of Philadelphia, whose testimony greatly resembled that of the preceding two. Before the examination of the last gentleman was concluded the hour for closing arrived, and the Court was adjourned over until to-morrow.

SALT LAKE CITY.

Communication With the Town Blockaded by Snow—Brigham Young to Surrender Himself.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Dec. 31.—The snow blockade on the Union Pacific Railroad and the temporary refusal of the Central Pacific Railroad to receive freight is very embarrassing to the mercantile interests here. Trade is almost suspended, and the supply of some of the necessaries are about exhausted. The newspapers are in want of paper. Yesterday's edition of the Herald was printed on paper smaller than has been used. United States Senator COLE, of California, is here, awaiting the opening of the road east. BRIGHAM YOUNG washes Provo today. A private dispatch says he will be in Salt Lake City to-morrow night or the next morning, and surrender himself to the United States Marshal at once to answer to the charge of murder. A new national bank will be opened here during the coming week.

BOSTON.

Inauguration of the Mayor—Municipal Debt of the Citizens of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Jan. 1.—The new City Government of Boston was inaugurated today, the oath of office being administered to Mayor GASTON by Judge GRAY, of the Supreme Judicial Court. M. T. DICKINSON was chosen Chairman of the Common Council. The total debt of Boston, as stated in the Mayor's inaugural address, is $29,522,590 52, with means on hand for payment amounting to $11,770,163 35. The address gives an encouraging view of the rapid growth of the city in wealth and population. Several other cities of the Commonwealth were inaugurated with new city Governments today, which show indebtedness as follows: Charleston owes $95,237; Cambridge owes $1,811,400; Chelsea owes $847,520; Somerville owes $620,345; Lowell owes $899,216; Lawrence owes $413,850; Haverhill owes $150,750; Taunton owes $372,372; Worcester owes $2,440,000; Lynn owes $2,000,000; New-Bedford owes $640,000.

PHILADELPHIA.

Changes in the Municipal Government—Narrow Escape of a Family from Death by Suffocation.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 1.—The Mayor elect, STARKLEY, was sworn into office at noon today. After the usual inaugural ceremonies, the Chief of Police and Lieutenants of the various districts were sworn in by the Mayor, and at 4 o'clock the old force were relieved by the new, the whole number having been previously selected. The City Treasurer, Controller, Commissioners and Solicitor elect also assumed the duties of their respective offices today. The day has been partly observed as a holiday in this city. No less than thirteen robberies were perpetrated here last night and today. Early this morning the Substation-house, known as the Farm, corner of Ninth and south streets, was totally destroyed by fire. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. It was partially burned about a week ago. A Harrisburg dispatch says that on Saturday night a family of five persons had a narrow escape from suffocation by coal-gas. They had retired without properly arranging the stove-pipe, which ran through the upper rooms. The mother of the house managed to crawl down-stairs, and, calling the neighbors, the rest of the family, were immediately relieved. The Harrisburg dispatch also states that it is expected there will be a full attendance of both Houses of the Legislature at the time of meeting to-morrow.

OHIO.

Opening of the Legislature—Entire Success of the Republican Party in the Election of Officers.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 1.—There was a large number present in the Senate this morning to witness the organization. Lieut.-Gov. LEE called the Senate to order at 10 o'clock. All the Senators were present. E. T. HALL (Republican) was elected Chief Clerk. The vote stood 18 to 18 for his opponent, C. B. FLOOD, (Dem.) The Lieutenant-Governor gave his casting vote, and at once decided Mr. HALL duly elected. Mr. PUTNAM, of Ross, (Dem.) rose to a point of order, but the Lieutenant-Governor said no business was in order except nomination of Assistant Clerk. Mr. PUTNAM asked if an appeal from the decision of the Chair was in order? The Chair said nothing was in order but the nomination of Assistant-Clerk, and at once swore Mr. Hall in as Chief Clerk. Nominations were then made for Assistant Clerk, and all the Republicans voted for their caucus nominees. The Democrats lost seventeen votes for one of their nominees, and one for another, thus preventing a tie. Nine ballots were had without election, and on the tenth a Republican was elected by the Lieutenant-Governor's casting vote. All the other Republican nominees were elected by the Lieutenant-Governor's casting vote, except for unimportant offices. The House organized by electing N. H. VAN VORHES, of Athens, Speaker, and B. J. LOOMIS, of Franklin, as Chief Clerk, both Republicans. All other Republican caucus nominees were elected. The Senate adopted a resolution, introduced by Mr. BERRIL, Democrat, asking Ohio Senators and Representatives in Congress to vote for SUMNER'S proposed amendment to the Constitution, making any person ineligible to the office of United States President for more than one term, the vote standing sixteen to fifteen—all Democrats and two Republicans, GAGE and CASSIDY voting for it. The annual message of Gov. HAYES was read in the Senate during the afternoon session. It is a brief document, confined entirely to affairs of Ohio. The finances of the State are represented as being in good condition. The interest-bearing debt is $9,956,511 05 cents; the non-interest-bearing, $44,518 31.

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 2—1 A. M.—The barometer has risen since Sunday afternoon in the Middle and Eastern States. It has fallen from Illinois westward, with south-easterly winds and increasing cloudiness. Clear weather prevails from Michigan to Georgia and eastward, with light northerly winds and falling temperature.

PROBABILITIES.

The barometer will probably continue steady on the Atlantic coast, with partially cloudy and clear weather on Tuesday, followed by falling barometer and easterly winds on Tuesday night; an area of low barometer will develop in the Missouri Valley, and threatening weather, with south-easterly winds extend slowly eastward over the lakes.

Dangerous winds are not anticipated for to-night.

Terrible Murder in Newfoundland.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 1.—The steamer City of Halifax, from St. John's, Newfoundland, arrived today. She reports having encountered very heavy weather. In the double murder case at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, the girl HAMILTON confesses that GEHLER murdered his wife by knocking her down and then smothering her with a feather bed. He then shot her brother, SAYERS HAMILTON. She says she helped to dispose of the bodies.

The

investigations during a period of nearly two months, which have led them to the conclusions with this Committee in the report hereto annexed.

That the said Committee report that gross frauds have been practiced in the management of our City and County affairs, but do not implicate any particular public officials, or recommend that any specific action be taken by the City and County authorities, other than that a copy of the report and documents therein referred to be transmitted to his Honor the Mayor.

Your Committee having carefully examined the report of the Committee of Citizens and the various reports of their subcommittees upon which the said report is based, having come to the conclusion that the report was fully justified and called for by the facts developed upon the investigation of the Committee of Citizens, and deems it advisable to make their report to the Board, and having carefully considered what action it would be proper for your Committee to recommend to this Board and the Common Council under the startling revelations of fraud developed by the investigation instituted by this Board. Your Committee has heard that the various organizations ostensibly formed for the purpose of exposing corruption and bringing the officials guilty of fraud to punishment, would have consulted and advised with your Committee as to what course ought to be pursued by the City and County authorities in order to punish those who have been guilty of frauds, and if possible to recover back the money fraudulently obtained from the City and County Treasury, but although your Committee were ready, willing and anxious at all times to recommend such action as would not subserve the interests of the City, your Committee has never received from any quarter any intimation that the co-operation or assistance of the Common Council was desirable, or could be made beneficial to the interests of the City or the cause of justice or reform.

Although your Committee have shown their earnestness and sincerity in their labors, they have assistance a number of the ablest and best citizens in our City, and have thereby caused the whole machinery of fraud in the City and County Government to be thoroughly exposed, in a manner that left no doubt whatever in the minds of the citizens of this City that the investigation had been thoroughly and impartially conducted, your Committee are, however, of the opinion that the Common Council should not be entirely silent or inactive under the circumstances, but that they should recommend that such action be taken as the law permits, and the circumstances of the case requires.

And in this connection it is proper to state that the Common Council were in no manner responsible, either directly or indirectly, for any of the frauds shown by the Committee of Citizens to have been practiced, nor were they invested by law with any means of knowing of their existence, much less of preventing their being consummated.

The present charter gives the Common Council no control whatever over the Departments of the City Government, and does not even require any reports to be made by them to the Common Council, nor does it authorize the Common Council to call for any reports or information from the different Departments. The power of controlling and supervising the various Departments of the City Government, formerly possessed by the Common Council, was by the present charter vested in the Mayor, who alone has the power to appoint the heads of and control and supervise the various Departments. The yearly reports of the various Departments of the City Treasury, which were formerly transmitted to the Common Council, are now furnished to the Mayor, and thus the Common Council had no means of knowing in what manner the public money was expended. The evident intention of the present charter was to concentrate power in the hands of the Mayor, and to make him specially, if not almost alone, responsible for the good order and efficient government of the City. Section 1 of the Charter of 1870, provides it shall be the duty of the Mayor to communicate with the Common Council at least once a year; to recommend measures connected with the security of the City, (protection and improvement of the government and finances) to be vigilant in causing the laws to be executed, and generally to perform all such duties as may be prescribed for him by the laws and ordinances. Section 21 provides that the Departments shall, when called upon by the Mayor, report to him their operations and action. Section 23 provides that the Controller shall report to the Mayor each month the name of every person in whose favor an account has been audited, &c., &c. It thus will be seen that the Mayor is vested with full power and entire responsibility, in all matters relating to the government of the City, and is vested with all the authority necessary to exercise all that power and discharge that responsibility. The only power vested in the Common Council by the charter of impeaching the Mayor, which power may be exercised by resolution of two-thirds of all the members elected in each Board. After mature deliberation upon the facts and evidence brought to the knowledge of your Committee, and which are set forth in the report of the Committee of Citizens, your Committee deem that the Mayor should be impeached by the Common Council "for the Mayor being vested by law with the supervision of all the various Departments, being furnished with periodical statements of their financial accounts, and having the authority vested in him to call for such reports as he might require, and being made responsible by law for the proper management of these departments, and frauds of the gross kind having been practiced in many of the departments, it is apparent that the Mayor should be held responsible and deemed liable for the frauds that have been committed.

Your Committee, therefore, recommend that the Mayor be impeached for malfeasance and misfeasance in office, in not having properly discharged the duties imposed upon him by law. The charter of 1870 makes it the duty of the Court of Common Pleas to define by rule the mode of impeachment and trial of charges. This Court, so far as your Committee are aware, have never by any rule defined the mode of impeachment, and in the absence of any such rule your Committee recommend that a resolution of impeachment be passed, and that counsel be designated to prepare the necessary articles of impeachment and prosecute the same before the Court of Common Pleas in accordance with any rule that may hereafter be adopted by the Court of Common Pleas.

The report concludes with a recommendation that a vote of thanks be accorded to the Committee of Citizens who acted with the Committee of the Common Council in investigating the City and County accounts. A resolution in accordance therewith was unanimously adopted.

(Signed.) JAMES G. DIMOND,
EDW. SCHLICHTING,
G. W. PLUNKITT,
HENRY WOLTMAN, } Committee.

The following resolution, offered by Alderman WOLTMAN, impeaching the Mayor, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That A. OAKEY HALL, Mayor of the City of New-York, having been guilty of malfeasance and misfeasance in office, in having failed to communicate to the Common Council a general statement of the finances of the City, and in having failed to be vigilant and active in causing the ordinances of the City of New-York to be duly executed and enforced, and in having failed to perform the duties required for him by City ordinances and the laws of the State as required by law, and in having failed to properly discharge and fulfill the responsibility imposed upon him by law for the good order and efficient government of the City, and in having neglected and refused to direct that proper reports of the operations of the various Departments of the City Government be made to him, and to furnish the such information as might have enabled him to properly discharge the duties of his office might be furnished to him, as he was authorized and empowered by law to direct and require, and although furnished by the Controller, as required by law, with a report once in ninety days, showing the name of every person in whose favor an account had been audited, with the decision of the Auditor upon the same, together with the final action upon the same, in having failed to check the reckless extravagance which said reports must have made manifest to him, and in having recklessly and wantonly signed warrants upon the public Treasury which, under the law, he was bound to investigate under the provisions of law, conferring upon him the power to require any information he might demand, he and he hereby is impeached for the malfeasance and misfeasance in office aforesaid.

Resolved, That the counsel to the Corporation, CHARLES O'CONOR and JOHN HARDY, be and they are hereby appointed to prepare articles of impeachment and prosecute the same before the proper tribunal.

The Board then took a recess, after the reelection of Mr. HARDY as Clerk.

During the recess the members of the Board held a private caucus. The appointed hour for reassembling passed, and the caucus was still in session. A large and somewhat excited crowd collected in the corridors outside, anxiously discussing the probabilities of events. Gradually it was ascertained that writs had been issued by Judge CARDOZO prohibiting the action of this Board, or any of its members as Aldermen, after 12 o'clock, and a strong feeling of excitement supervened. Mr. HENRY L. CLINTON, as counsel of the new Board, accompanied by several officers of the Supreme Court, anxiously awaited the hour for the formal announcement of the order of Judge CARDOZO and a demand for the compliance with it. The moments quickly flew by, the excitement increased, and frequent but unavailing efforts were made by the officers to execute the writs. No one was permitted to pass the portals of the Aldermanic Chamber by the Sergeant-at-Arms without identification, and all attempts in that direction were roughly repulsed. This was, of course, due to the fact that service had been personally performed on some members of the Board, and it was immediately communicated to all. Finally, at 11:55 o'clock, it was determined to reassemble for regular business, and the members of the Press were admitted. All others were still excluded.

Alderman CUDDY was moved to the chair.

Alderman COMAN formally tendered his resignation as President, and on the motion of Alderman WOLTMAN it was accepted.

Alderman PLUNKITT—I now move that we proceed to the election. I nominate HENRY WOLTMAN as President of the Board of Aldermen. The resolution was adopted, and Aldermen MITCHELL and PLUNKITT were appointed to escort him to the chair.

Alderman WOLTMAN said: I am very much obliged to you for the honor you have conferred upon me in electing me your presiding officer. The time of my Presidency may be brief. I have no doubt it will be, but rest assured that anything that comes before me will receive due consideration, and my decisions will be made in due fairness and impartiality.

The oath of office was then taken by Mr. COMAN as Alderman by Mr. CUDDY.

Mr. WOLTMAN—I now tender this body my resignation as its President.

On motion it was accepted, and Mr. CUDDY elected pro tem.

Mr. WOLTMAN proposed Mr. THOMAS COMAN as President for the present year. The resolution was unanimously carried.

Alderman COMAN, on taking the chair, said: Gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen, I sincerely thank you for this evidence of your sympathy and regard. I will endeavor to perform the duties of the office in a manner to meet your approval.

Complimentary resolutions were passed to the President and other officers, and the Board of Aldermen for 1871 adjourned sine die.

Just before the adjournment of the Board the hand of the clock had reached 12, and the Clerk, Mr. HARDY, was compelled to hurry over the reading of the minutes and the other business before that time.

Exciting Scene in the Chamber of the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. CLINTON, Mr. ABRAHAM R. LAWRENCE and the officers of the Supreme Court, at 12 o'clock, demanded admission to the Chamber of the Board of Aldermen in the name of the law. Compliance with the request was peremptorily refused, and threats were made in the event of persistence in the demand. Amid the greatest confusion Mr. LAWRENCE read the order of Judge CARDOZO prohibiting further action of the Board after 12 o'clock of the 1st of January, and declared that prosecutions would be instituted for contempt of Court. The excitement continued to increase. Loud and angry remonstrances were heard at the door, and it produced no visible effect on the administrative body within. Finally, by some means, the door was partially opened, and a powerful effort was made to force an entrance. The confusion increased within and without. Outside on the corridors the feeling was such that a breach of the peace was imminent, and appeared to be only preserved by the restraining influence of the leaders of reform. The Aldermen inside jumped from their seats loudly calling upon the Sergeant-at-Arms to admit no one. Mr. WOLTMAN, very excitedly, screamed out to "shut the door," while" JIM" IRVING blindly plunged forward to secure by his presence the purposes of his colleagues. Still the tumult continued, but finally, with a great rush the doors were flung open and the Chamber became filled with an immense concourse of people. The officers of the Supreme Court straight way proceeded to serve the writs of prohibition upon the members of the Board, and at first politely made known their intentions. Without a solitary exception all of the old Aldermen endeavored to avoid the service, and jumped over seats and desks endeavoring to avoid the officers. The latter were not to be foiled, and one of them, a young boy named SHIELDS, in the employ of Mr. CLINTON, followed JIM IRVING with the writ. He thrust it into his breast, but it was spurned, and JIM made a desperate effort to escape. SHIELDS pursued him round the President's chair, and in again attempting to serve it, was assaulted by IRVING. The assault was witnessed by dozens of persons present, who charged IRVING with cowardice. The latter denied it, using epithets of exceeding meanness. The boy SHIELDS is of exceedingly diminutive proportions.

Stimulated rather than terrified by the assault, SHIELDS then followed other members of the Board who were retreating toward the door, with the intention of serving them. Cries of "Stop him!" were raised, and one of the messengers of the Board roughly seized him round the body, and but for a reporter, who prevented it, would have thrown him over the railings. Service was then made upon most of those present. A suggestion was made not to permit the members of the new Board to occupy the room, but the better counsel prevailed. Mr. WOLTMAN said they had accomplished their purpose in having organized, and by his advice the room was surrendered into the hands of the Referees.

The writ issued by Judge CARDOZO is as follows:

The People of the State of New-York to Lawrence R. Jerome, William H. Charlock, Edward Cuddy, James G. Dimond, Emanuel B. Hart, James Irving, James McKiever, George H. Mitchell, Bernard O'Neill, Bryan Reilly, Edward Schlichting, Edward Welch and Henry Woltman, greeting:

Whereas, Peter Gilsey lately in our Court, before the Justices thereof, at the Court-house, in the City of New-York, came and gave the same Court to understand and to inform it, as follows, namely, to wit: that the said Peter Gilsey is, and for many years last past has been, a citizen of the United States and of the State of New-York, and an elector and resident of the City of New-York; that at the general election held in the City of New-York on the 7th day of November, 1871, the said Peter Gilsey, Jenkins Van Schaick, William Radde, James Fitzgerald, William Joyce, James McLaren, Daniel D. Conover, Alexander Wilder, Alexander Martin, John Falconer, Samuel R. H. Vance, John Cochrane and Solomon Mehrbach, were duly elected as Aldermen of the City of New-York for a term of two years, to wit, on the Monday of January, 1872, and to end on the first Monday of January, 1873, and that the said Peter Gilsey and the persons above named were, and each of them was, duly declared and certified to be elected to the said office of Alderman by a majority of the votes cast by the electors of said City for the said office of Alderman at the said election; and

Whereas, The said Peter Gilsey hath further represented to us that on the 25th day of December, 1871, he duly subscribed and took an oath of office as such Alderman, before Hon. Albert Cardozo, one of the Justices of our Supreme Court; that the said oath was in writing, and that the same has been duly delivered at the office of the Mayor of the City of New-York, for the purpose of being filed, as provided by the charter of the City of New-York; and

Whereas, The said Peter Gilsey hath further represented to us that at the election aforesaid, Thomas Coman and George W. Plunkitt were each also candidates for the office of Alderman at the said election, and that the said Dilger and Carroll claim that each of them were elected an Alderman of the said City, over the said Plunkitt and Coman, for the term commencing on the first Monday of January, 1872, and ending on the first Monday of January, 1873, and have protested against the certificate of the said Board of County Canvassers certifying and declaring the said Coman and Plunkitt to have been elected to such office; that the said Dilger and Carroll contested the right of said Coman and Plunkitt to said office; and

Whereas, The said Peter Gilsey hath further represented to us that in and by an act of the Legislature of the State, entitled "An act to reorganize the local Government of the City of New-York," passed April 5, 1870, it is provided as follows:

ARTICLE 1, SECTION 1. The legislative power of the said Corporation shall consist of an Board of Aldermen and a Board of Assistant Aldermen, who, or either, shall form the Common Council of the City of New-York.

* * * * * * *

SEC. 3. The Board of Aldermen shall consist of fifteen members, to be elected upon a general ticket from the City at large.

* * * * * * *

SEC. 5. Such Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen shall be elected as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 6. The first election for Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen shall take place at the judicial election, to be held in the City and County of New-York on the third Tuesday in May, in the year 1870, and the Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen thus elected shall take office on the first Monday in June following, at noon, and then supersede the Common Council now in office, whose term of office shall then end. The Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen so elected in May, 1870, shall hold office until the first Monday in January which will be in the year 1872. There shall be Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen elected at the general election in November, 1871, and annually thereafter at every succeeding general election, who shall take office at noon on the first Monday of January in each and every year following their election."

That at the election held on said third Tuesday of May, 1870, Lawrence R. Jerome, William A. Charlock, Edward Cuddy, James G. Dimond, Emanuel B. Hart, James Irving, James McKiever, George H. Mitchell, Bernard O'Neill, Bryan Reilly, Edward Schlichting, Edward Welch, Henry Woltman, Thomas Coman, and George W. Plunkitt, were elected Aldermen of the City of New-York, and that their terms of office will expire on the first Monday of January, 1872, at noon; and

Whereas, The said Peter Gilsey hath also represented to us that he is advised and believes that the aforesaid provisions of the statute above mentioned and referred to were in full force and effect at the time the general election aforesaid was held in the City and County of New-York on the 7th day of November, 1871, and the same were in no respect repealed; that by an act of the Legislature of this State, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled an act to reorganize the local Government of the City of New-York, passed April 5, 1870," passed April 18, 1871, it is provided as follows:

SECTION 10. Section 6 of said act is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

SECTION 6. The Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen who shall be elected severally as such in May, 1870, and who are severally in office at the passage of this act, shall hold and are hereby continued in office until the first Monday in January which will be in the year 1872, and the Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen elected at the general State election, which will occur in the year 1872, and for a term of two years, and annually every two years thereafter on the day of the general State election, shall take office on the first Monday and Assistant Aldermen shall commence on the first Monday of the January succeeding each said election. All the provisions of law relating to general elections in the City of New-York, so far as they may be applicable in respect to the manner of conducting elections, or to the canvass and estimate of votes, shall apply to every election for Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen, and in filling the office or offices of Alderman or Assistant Alderman occurring or existing from death or resignation, or any other cause or contingency, before said election in 1872, shall be filled by the appointment of the Mayor, and filed with the Clerks of the respective Boards; and

Whereas, The said Peter Gilsey hath also represented to us that he is advised and believes that the said act (last) above cited and referred to of 1871, above set forth, is unconstitutional and void.

That A. Oakey Hall is the Mayor of the City of New-York, and that his present term of office as such Mayor commenced on the first Monday of January, 1871; and

Whereas, The said Peter Gilsey hath also represented to us that although the said Peter Gilsey and Jenkins Van Schaick, William Radde, James Fitzgerald, William Joyce, James McLaren, Daniel D. Conover, Alexander Wilder, Alexander Martin, John Falconer, Samuel R. H. Vance, John Cochrane and Solomon Mehrbach, from exercising or assuming to exercise the powers, duties, privileges and prerogatives of Aldermen of the City of New-York, or from acting or assuming to act as members of the Board of Aldermen of the City of New-York, after the first Monday of January, 1872, at noon, or from receiving any appointment from A. Oakey Hall, as Mayor of the City of New-York, to the office of Alderman of the City of New-York, for the year 1872.

All have you then and there this writ.

Witness, John A. Shipp, one of the Justices of our said Supreme Court, at the Court-house, in the City of New-York, the 1st day of January, 1872.

(Signed) CHAS. H. LOAW, Clerk.

A. R. LAWRENCE, Jr., of Counsel for Plaintiff.
HENRY L. CLINTON, of Counsel.

Mr. GEORGE W. ROOME, keeper of the City Hall, appeared in the chamber of the Board at noon, and producing a document from his pocket attempted to read it, but was hustled out. The document was a letter addressed to Mr. ROOME by GEORGE M. VAN NORT, Commissioner of Public Works, stating that he, the Commissioner, had become by law custodian of the building known as the City Hall, and directing Mr. ROOME, as janitor of the building, to place the members of the Common Council, elected at the last election, in possession of the chambers provided for the meetings of the Common Council. The following is the letter:

Organization of the New Board of Aldermen—The Mayor Present—His Speech—The Impeachment Declared Null and Void.

The new Board met at 12½ o'clock. Present—Aldermen Alexander Martin, John Cochrane, James Fitzgerald, Wm. Radde, Alexander Wilder, D. D. Conover, James McLaren, Wm. Joyce, Jenkins Van Schaick, Solomon Mehrbach, Thomas Vance, John Falconer and Peter Gilsey.

The roll was called, and Aldermen COMAN and PLUNKITT did not answer to their names.

Alderman VANCE was appointed temporary Chairman, Mr. SCHAFER Secretary, and Mr. LOUIS JACOBS Sergeant-at-Arms pro tem.

Alderman WILDER moved that the rules of the Board for 1871 be revised, and, if necessary, that new ones be adopted in their stead. The motion was carried.

Alderman COCHRANE—We now being in a condition to move in a parliamentary manner, I move that a committee of three be appointed to inform the Mayor that we are thus organized and ready to receive any communication from him, or entertain his personal presence. The motion was carried, and Aldermen COCHRANE, GILSEY and MARTIN appointed to wait upon the Mayor.

After an absence of some twenty minutes, they returned, accompanied by the Mayor.

The President informed him of the resolution of the Board.

The Mayor, in reply, said:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN: Allow me a few words. I came over to the office of the Mayor of the City today at noon, prepared, with very great respect, however, to the Court, to disobey the writ of prohibition which was served upon me on Saturday, for the reason that I was instructed by counsel, very learned in the law, that it was void upon its face, because a writ of prohibition can only be issued to a Court or to a suitor in a Court. And I came prepared for the purpose solely of solving any legal doubt that might exist of performing a pledge which I long ago entered into, to appoint the old Board of Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen. I find that they had seen fit on their part to give me an opportunity of doing as I please. They had taken, without any conference with me, without seeking any conference, hostile action both personal and official. Whether or not this Board is in office by election or not, it certainly is in office by appointment of the Mayor under the charter of 1871, for when the action of the old Common Council was communicated to me I say I was at liberty to take hostile action on my part. And there is thus a union of title. If you are elected, that is one title. If you are not elected, you certainly are appointed. These remarks are, of course, a little out of order, and I am only stealing them by the sufferance of the Board. Whether you are in office by election or by appointment, I shall now proceed to administer, under the ordinances, the oath of office.

All the members of the new Board, with the exception of COMAN and PLUNKITT, who were absent, then formally took the official oath.

The officers elected pro tem. were then reelected.

Alderman COCHRANE—I move that, now being sworn in, we resolve ourselves into a Board of Supervisors of the City and County of New-York, and request the Mayor to preside.

The proposition was adopted, and the Mayor, on a requisition signed by three-fourths of the members, attended and presided as Chairman of the Board of Supervisors.

On the motion of the Mayor it was resolved, that as the Chamber of the Board of Supervisors was required for a Court, and there was no necessity for two Chambers for the business of the County, in future the Chamber of the Board of Aldermen be designated as the Chamber of the Board of Supervisors.

The Mayor then said: "At the next session of the Board I will announce the Committees for the ensuing year, according to the custom, and such other Committees as the Board may desire to select."

The Supervisors then adjourned, but the members continued to sit as a Board of Aldermen.

Alderman COCHRANE moved the following:

Whereas, The late Board of Aldermen have impeached the Mayor of the City of New-York,

Resolved, That the same being void and of no effect, is hereby rescinded.

This was carried unanimously.

A petition was presented on behalf of JOHN DILGER and MICHAEL CARROLL, claiming the seats in the Board of Aldermen as persons occupied by Messrs. COMAN and PLUNKITT, on the grounds that in a recent election the latter

Mr. GEORGE W. ROOME, keeper of the City Hall, appeared in the chamber of the Board at noon, and producing a document from his pocket attempted to read it, but was hustled out. The document was a letter addressed to Mr. ROOME by GEORGE M. VAN NORT, Commissioner of Public Works, stating that he, the Commissioner, had become by law custodian of the building known as the City Hall, and directing Mr. ROOME, as janitor of the building, to place the members of the Common Council, elected at the last election, in possession of the chambers provided for the meetings of the Common Council. The following is the letter:

Mr. George W. Roome, Keeper of the City Hall:

SIR: By virtue of the provisions of chapter 137, laws of 1870, commonly called the Charter of the City of New-York, the control and care of the public buildings in said City is vested in the Department of Public Works. I hereby direct you to place the members elect of the Boards of Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen in possession of the chambers of said Boards respectively, in the City Hall, at 12 o'clock M. this day. I herewith inclose you a certified copy of the list of the persons composing said Boards.

Representations as to Movements in the United States—Dread of American Interference—Effect of Congressional Sympathy—Miscellaneous Gleanings.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, Dec. 23, 1871.

The interest shown by the Press of the United States in discussing the affairs of Cuba, and the evident desire to know what really happens here, makes people speculate on the causes which produce this sentiment. Only one solution is arrived at, namely, that the formation of a party in America is sought for the purpose of absorbing the Island of Cuba. Many Cubans are in favor of this idea, especially such as sympathize with the revolutionary cause here, but the majority of wealthy and intelligent natives is opposed to any close connection with the United States than that at present existing. The Spaniards are to a man averse to any change which could deprive the mother country of its colony, the exceptions being so few as not to deserve mention.

DREAD OF AMERICAN INTERFERENCE.

The local papers are busily engaged in discussing the recent proceedings in Congress. Today the Diario says that every resolution that that concerning the massacre of students constitutes an act of intrusion into the private affairs of another country and an attack on its sovereignty, and when this intrusion proceeds from a distinguished part of one Government, that the nation offended must protest against the voluntary offence on the part of those who do not consider the respect mutually due each other by two countries. The resolution introduced into Congress, and relating to the unfortunate execution of the eight boys, was undoubtedly meant by the mover to express his sympathy and that of the nation with the sorrowing parents and relatives of the victims, and to condemn the act of a sanguinary and bloodthirsty mob. But the mover of the resolution, or those who prompted his action, undoubtedly forgot that this mob is still in our midst, and that thirty-eight students are still wearing the felon's garb and the chain. This resolution almost neutralizes the efforts of Gen. VALMASEDA and the hundreds of others who are doing their utmost to bring about a state of affairs by which the Volunteers themselves will ask the pardon of those young men. It is positive that such a movement is now in progress, and I have no doubt but that it will meet with success. A friend of mine, who is intimate with the father of one of the young students executed, (the father being a Cuban,) has just had an interview with him, when the following conversation took place—my friend first expressing his sorrow at the sad occurrence by which he lost his son:

CONVERSATION.—Have you not seen the telegram today regarding the resolution of Congress expressing their sympathy?

FATHER.—What has happened cannot be recalled, and my heartbroken wife mourns my oldest son, on whom I doted, and his mother will never get over the shock. I thank all my friends who have so kindly expressed their sympathies with us during these sad moments, but I regret that the relatives of the other victims should have taken this matter up, as it cannot do any good to us in any quarter, and only prove injurious to the country and the people here in general. Remember what the country has already suffered, and it can avoid that other people should suffer, I shall do so. Besides we are Spaniards, and the United States ought to attend to its own affairs, although they offer their sympathy; for which, I am thankful. Though well disposed, the people there cannot see things in the same light we do. Let us have the rest of the boys free, and if Congress or the President should have asked this of the King, I am sure that the request would have been granted and a large number of families made happy."

The answer of this gentleman needs comments. As a father he curses those who were instrumental in sending his child to an untimely and undeserved grave; as a father he wishes to see his other son free, and, as a loyal subject of Spain, he deprecates any interference which could make the situation of the country worse.

FOREIGN VISITORS.

An Havana journal, speaking of Americans, asserted that during all the troubles only one American was killed in Havana; this was Mr. S. A. COHEN, the photographer. GRUNWALD, the German, and the Frenchman, killed in the Louvre, were foreigners. However, the number is much too large, and as the ire of the Volunteers and Spaniards was not directed against any foreigner, these three were just three too many.

MISCELLANEOUS GOSSIP.

ALBERT GASSIER, the celebrated bass singer, and husband of the late Mme. GASSIER, the prima donna, died of yellow fever contracted in Vera Cruz. His nephew is still lying ill with the same disease. GASSIER's funeral was largely attended. The behavior of M. TAMBERLIK was generous in the extreme. The opera, meanwhile, continues successfully. TAMBERLIK is a king among tenors. Señor VIDAL, a Spaniard, is a very good light tenor. The new tenor, Signor CESARI SARTI made a poor début, being frightened to death, and becoming hoarse during the performance of "Lucia," yesterday evening. MAEI, the baritone, is getting a better control of his voice, and is becoming more of a favorite every day. Mme. REBOUX is a fine singer, of agreeable presence, and with an established European reputation; when she appears the theatre is always crowded. The lightsprima donna, Mme. DALLI, is more liked, and shares the honors of the season with Mme. REBOUX. Mme. JULIANI is a good singer, but has not made as strong an impression as her companions.

FRANCE AND ENGLAND.

A Projected Channel Steam-Ferry to Unite the Two Nations.

Boulogne (Dec. 31) Correspondence of the London Times.

The French Government has appointed a Commission, which will assemble in a few days at the Prefecture of Arras, to report upon a projected line of mammoth steamers, which it is intended to run between the Admiralty Pier, Dover, and a new harbor to be constructed at Calais.

The new scheme is brought out under the auspices of M. DUPUY DE LOME, the celebrated French naval architect, in Paris, and Mr. Russell SEARLE, in London. M. DUPUY DE LOME setting forth in his own name and also in the name of the Société des Forges et Chantiers de la Méditerranée, MM. DROPSIE DU LEUYS, SCOTT RUSSELL and others.

The leading features in the new project are the adoption of a single vessel for the proposed steamers, the dimensions of which will be: Length over all, 450 feet; breadth at waterline, 50 feet; depth from deck to bottom of the hold, 32 feet; draught of water when loaded, 23 feet, 6 inches; displacement, 25,000 tons; diameter of paddle-wheel, 50 feet; diameter of paddle-wheel, 19 feet. Each wheel will be driven by an engine of 700-horse power (nominal) capable of working up to 2,500 giving an aggregate of 1,400 horses to each vessel. The sea wheels will be disposed fore-and-aft, this allowing them to be worked at different rates of speed, so as to permit the vessel to assist in bringing the steamer alongside the wharf, or to turn the ship around in little more than her own length. On a lower deck will be a double line of rails, each line being of sufficient length to receive fifteen railway carriages and wagons. The estimated rate of speed will be eighteen knots an hour, whereby it is hoped to perform the passage in one hour and ten minutes in fine weather, and in one hour and thirty minutes in bad.

By using this steamer, and having one in reserve, the proprietors would be enabled to make six passages each way daily, thus carrying 2,688 passengers and 2,400 tons of goods per day, or 978,200 passengers and 800,000 tons of goods a year. The cost of these steamers is estimated at about £150,000 each, or, in round numbers, £400,000 for the three.

To receive these mammoth steamers it will be necessary to construct a new harbor or dock. The site selected is a mile and a quarter to the north-east of Calais Pier-head, and at a distance of three-quarters of Influence of the Elections—Government Manœuvres and Prospects—The Approaching Parliamentary Session—Numerous Projected Reforms—Count Andrassy's Attitude.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BERLIN, Saturday, Dec. 9, 1871.

Events have come to a temporary standstill at Vienna, and must remain there until the country has declared itself by the impending elections, recording its vote either for or against the new Cabinet. Pending that decision all conjectures are necessarily premature, for Prince AUERSPERG has in a measure engaged to stand or fall by the popular vote. Little apprehension is entertained, however, that the ex-popnll will be otherwise than favorable to the new ruler, whose family interest in Bohemia secures him the support of at least a large portion of the great landed proprietors of that kingdom, while the corresponding class in the neighboring province of Moravia is reckoned already as leaned on the Ministerial side. It will be remembered that it was these two powerful classes which exercised the casting vote in the late elections in favor of Count HOHENWART. It seems, however, certain that the Poles—notwithstanding the failure of their negotiations with Prince AUERSPERG—loyally attend the Reichsrath, and thus add to the support of the present Government. The negotiations were broken off because the Poles demanded the recognition of their own Minister as a party independent of the Cabinet and not responsible with his colleagues for its acts. The Prime Minister was ready to concede a voice in all purely Galician affairs, and even to assign to the Galician Minister a favored position, but he absolutely declined the Polish proposition, which would have split up the Cabinet into two halves and materially weakened its own power, which, if the present conjuncture, rather requires strengthening. The difference is, however, not a vital one, and has not been permitted to disturb as yet the friendly relations between the two parties, or to extend the reciprocal desire of each to conciliate the other. A compromise will doubtless be effected, and the projected strong cord of unity running through the Empire from East to West, composed of Magyars, Poles and Germans, promises to be plaited in a perfect strength its was originally proposed. The Poles have up to now acquitted themselves legally on the crisis, refusing to listen to the sirens' voices coming on the one hand from Prague, and on the other from fendalist clerical in Vienna, not so forcing themselves to be misled by misinformations to bring forward their demands in any other b ut a constitutional form, viz.: by appealing to t he Reichsrath. Government has been directly ely assisted by the mediating of Count GOLUCHOWSKY, a tried servant of the Crown, and a popular Governor of the Polish provinces, possessing sufficient influence over his countrymen t o pledge himself for their attendance in Parliament. The choice of a Cabinet Minister for Galicia seems a different matter to settle. Count WODZICKI having been suggested by the Poles on the basis of their propositions, has naturally declined office on which refusal. There appears to be most chance at present for M. SZCHEINKOWSKY, a loyal supporter of the Crown, and the leader of the Centrahet, Moderate or pro-German Party. Notwithstanding some fiery agitations for the national cause, and for Sudetes and similar revolutionary character, the province is prepared to submit to his leadership.

GOVERNMENT MANŒUVRES.

Government is, meanwhile, sparing no pains to possess itself o f popular support. The Prime Minister's brother—Ex-Prime Minister Prince CARLOS AUERSPERG—has placed himself at the head of the ministerial agitation among the landed proprietors in Bohemia, and the chief of the Cabinet him self has made his formal resignment for the Governor's post in Salzburg the occasion for a forbearance meant more for the nation than the Province. Nor are funds spared to influence the Press. The price of 900,000 florins has not been deemed too high for the proprietorship of the Fremdenblatt by the Cis-Leithan Minister; the Foreign Minister, Count ANDRASSY, embarking at the same time in the humbler enterprise of the purchase of Neues Fremdenblatt for 400,000 florins. The Presse has like wise once more changed owners, passing into the hands of the Central Bank, which is understood to act for Government.

THE APPROACHING SESSION.

There is naturally a violent agitation going on on the eve of the elections, the result of which will in a manner decide the fate of the Empire, for if favorable to Government they will deprive malcontents for good and all of the weapons which they have hitherto unsparingly used with excellent effect, viz., abstention from Parliamentary attendance. This characteristic invests the coming session, though destined to be brief and assigned otherwise only to the discussion of dry financial matters, with unusual interest. Notwithstanding the hostile bearing of the Czechs—who even refused the use of the sanctuary of the Provincial Diet for the elections—and of the priests—whose spokesman, the Bishop of Linz, openly designates the question at issue as bring one between Church and State, and admonishes his flock to vote for the Church—the progress of the movement seems uniformly favorable for the Ministers, and would have been still more pronounced so had not the Germans—according to their usual practice—fallen out among themselves almost as soon as they achieved the victory. The rupture is now happily made up, but it has lost the party a march which their adversaries have stolen upon them.

THE FUTURE.

Many rumors are current with regard to the coming session, the opening speech for which some papers affirm to be ready written and waiting in the Emperor's desk. Most report is unfounded, and the Botschaft semi-officially announces that Ministers will not put their hand to the editorial work before the public voice has spoken by the elections. This appears to mean that if the elections go against them, Ministers will at once resign, and may be intended as a pressure upon the public vote, which is sick of continual changes. Indeed, every alternative almost, ought to be preferable to the patriotic Austrian of whatever party, to a crisis. Prince AUERSPERG seems inclined, after the long vacillations of his predecessors, to cut the Gordian knot by a decided attitude and bold stakes, for in addition to this first threat, conveyed by the Botschaft, he anticipates the discussion of the Budget by making its expeditious passage a Cabinet question. There is an excuse for this, for never has a Budget been laid before Parliament so late as this year, and the slightest delay threatens to bring public business to a dead lock. The Budget is said to be ready elaborated, undergoing the process of printing, under the care of Baron HOLZGESTRAN, the last relic of the Hohenwart Cabinet, once more doomed to retain office by the refusal of Dr. ESSLER to relieve him of its burden. Dr. HASNER, one of the German leaders and a Minister before, has the next chance in popular opinion, but the session being so far advanced and the Budget so urgent, his appointment before the session is undesirable.

A PROPOSED REVISION OF THE ELECTION LAW.

Besides the Budget, Ministers propose to bring under discussion a revision of the Election law, projected to defeat their sulking antagonists, by separating the Reichsrat (Imperial Parliament) from the Landtage (Provincial Diets.) It may be useful to quote an article reflecting on this subject, emanating obviously from a semi-official pen and published in Die Neuesten Revue, a leading Austrian weekly. "The Cabinet Auersperg," says the article, "is in a far more fortunate position than the 'Clifford Cabinet' was; it has not to take thought for such constitutions and influenced as propelled GINKRA and HASNER into a course of vacillation. The situation has become clear; there is no need any longer to shrink from thorough measures for the sake of 'conciliation and liberty;' those who once might have occasioned differences among the friends of the Constitution are now united, and will cause no disturbance. The question of a reform of the Election laws has been recognized as one of constitutional merit. The point at issue is not the composition of the House of Deputies, but the independent existence which that House is to obtain. There are no great questions to consider. Reforms may, therefore, be limited to the concession of the exclusion of the Imperial Parliament from the provincial Diets. It this is provided for, there is no objection to the election by groups of provinces. The political factors of the present time must be the creation of a liberal table, not its ulterior obstruction; that task must be left to the future. As a counterweight to the numerous destructive and disorganizing elements existing in Austria, the conservative element of the great landed interest will probably have to remain a characteristic of the popular representation for some time to come. However, Ministers have other tasks before them—but none of more organization. The Poles (Hermandonies) must have a damper put upon them. The Tyrolese Diet has elected deputies for a Reichsrath to discover a compromise, (the party object of the late Ministry,) not for a total Reichsrath; if the Tyrolese delegates do not appear in Parliament, recourse must be had to direct elections in the Tyrol. The (Liberal) Tyrol, in that event, not be wanting to the Reichsrath. If, on the other hand, the Tyrolese delegates do attend the Reichsrath, their elections ought, of necessity, to undergo a searching examination, and the party of the Constitution will hardly once more be betrayed into the acceptance of returns that are not strictly based on provisions of the Constitution; it will annul these elections and furnish an opportunity for the exercise of the Supplementary Election bill. In Bohemia the Czech agitation may have to be met by abolishing its chief support, disorganizing elections.

The article is of interest because it sketches out in pretty clear lines the course which the present Cabinet meanwhile pursue. I must warn your readers, however, not to accept the term "Liberal" in its Austrian application, as more than it is intended for. "Liberal," in that case, means no more than "constitutional." The great foes of the Constitution are the Ultramontanes, of which class the Tyrolese are singled out as the worst by the Monday Review, and the Separatist Nationalities, one of which the paper cannot relents the Czechs as the representatives of the class. A majority of two-thirds being indispensable for any modification of the Constitution, and these opposing parties constituting a formidable number, their absence acts as a powerful brake on the wheel of progress, and the only means of removing it is to adopt a new law, like that proposed, which shall deprive a successful candidate of his seat, if he fails to appear in session within a fortnight of the opening. To avoid the dangers of a new election, the second candidate is declared returned, and upon his failing, the third, and so on. The sentence referring to the great landed interest is explained by the established practice of election in classes, which secures to the reactionary element of large landed proprietors—in contradistinction to the small or peasant proprietors—a powerful influence.

ADDITIONAL REFORMS.

Besides the electoral reform, Government is alleged to be treating of other reforms not less urgent. If the Empire is to rise from its present retrograde inactivity. A somewhat questionable project is imputed to the Minister of Justice, viz.: To copy servilely the new German Criminal Code and transplant it into Austria, in order, thus to evade the troublesome elaboration of a reformed code of his own. Germany and Austria have much in common—language, tradition, habits; still the rigorous imitation of a northern institution may seem to invite criticism of servility by the new German nationalities, who hate German inventions mainly because they are German. Moreover, the German code, though elaborated under the supervision of so able a lawyer as Dr. LEONHARDT, is not the perfection of Solonic wisdom.

COUNT ANDRASSY'S ATTITUDE.

While Prince AUERSPERG has broken up new ground within, Count ANDRASSY has been not less active without, with more apparent success, his task being easier. His circular has proved a diplomatic chef d'œuvre in its effect, though hardly so in its wording, which, after the slaughgrate periods and the masterly French of his predecessor, reads wonderfully dry and plain. It has the advantage, however, in the modern interpretation of language, of not "concealing thought," but telling the truth plainly, and by this novel characteristic it has become invested with so potent a charm as even to allay Prussian suspicions and restore amity among the three Eastern Great Powers of Europe. In this capital it was natural that the official document should meet with favor and provoke a formal recognition of its friendly sentiments. Peace is, beyond all doubt, the true interest of the House of HAPSBURGH, which owns as wide a territory already as it can well manage, and would only—as Count ANDRASSY points out—gather new weakness from conquest. In Russia, however, these expressions which have grown to be the hackneyed terms of ambitious autocrats, might far more easily have aroused suspicions not altogether unsupported possibly by pricks of conscience. But the Czar has read them in a friendly sense, instructed his Ambassador, even, to anticipate his German colleague in recording his appreciation of the friendly document. That might be mere outward form and etiquette. The altered tenor of the Russian Press, however, gives it an air of sincerity, for the menacing tone of the Nationalist Slav papers has been at once stopped—evidently from above—and only the Kaiserzeit Gazette still growls out cautious threats and insinuations regarding the proposed semi-independence of Galicia, and Count Beust's brief visit to Versailles. The latter event has also collected a little censure from our friendly Court, the more as it was accomplished altogether by stealth, the Minister's intention to visit M. THIERS having been kept studiously secret. Allegiance is, however, made for Count BEUST's cosmopolitan leanings, and the demands of etiquette on a Government desirous of preserving friendly relations with every one.

A CLOUDED HORIZON.

Count ANDRASSY's reference to the ill-advisedness of a policy aiming at conquest has no less a special than a general meaning. The unquiet East, which never ceases to be moved with schemes and intrigues, seems once more to prepare troubles for the adjoining empires. It is Servia this time—the "Piedmont of the East," as it styles itself—which threatens to disturb the peace. As the French and Germans habitually rave about the Rhine, often without meaning any real harm, it has become a favorite topic with Russians and Magyars to assert an intention of annexing Servia. The Magyars appear of late to have indulged in this bragging a little more freely than usual; consequently the Servians have fled under the wings of Emperor ALEXANDER, seeking protection where, in serious danger from the apprehended quarter, they are surest to find it, though their protector would, in such an event, probably not be the man did to the horse in the fable. Prince MILAN's visit to the Czar, who received him "as his own child," in Livadia has added fuel to the fire, being so open a pro-Prussian demonstration as even to awaken the suspicions of the Porte, now otherwise on the best of terms with Russia. Rumor has as usual added to the existing grounds of suspicion, by multiplying reports received as truth by the credulous Orientals, one of them assigning a Russian bride to the youthful Prince of SERVIA by the machinations of one of the regency, M. BRISTIER. The pro-Russian feeling is rather surprising, considering that no longer ago than 1868 the Czar proposed the union of Servia and Montenegro, under the crown of the latter, but politicians in these parts have grown in their suspicion of their ambitious neighbors, to know of no other protection than that of submission to equally ambitious rivals; and as their legitimate protector, the Porte, is too weak to afford them help, they naturally waver continually between Austria and Russia. No wars are generally harder to avoid than those provoked by third and weaker parties, and Count ANDRASSY evidently had a misgiving of the growing ill feeling between Hungary and Servia under the Prussian aegis. The pressure in his circular was meant to remove the danger, and it is likely that it has done so, at least for the time.

VIRGINIA.

Bishop Wilmer and Southern—Illness of the Catholic Bishop of Richmond—The Bankers Upon the "Rolls"—The Bankers.

From Our Own Correspondent.

RICHMOND, Va., Friday, Dec. 29, 1871.

The statement made by the Second Auditor of Virginia, in his latest report, shows that the total debt of the State, old and new, is $47,000,296 42, of which $44,750,616 49 is fundable under the Funding act, $2,321,250 (known as the sterling debt) to remain in the original bonds at five per cent. interest. The two-thirds of the debt which the State assumes and has promised to pay interest on amount to the sum of $31,333,910 95, of which $29,576,555 96 is at six per cent, and $1,757,355 (of the sterling debt) is at five per cent. The annual interest (payable semi-annually) on the debt thus assumed is $1,863,450 90, one-half of which falls due on the 1st of January, 1872. There is now about $9,000,000 in the State Treasury, but it may be safely asserted that no interest will then be paid, except to the incorporated colleges and other institutions of learning in the State, for whose benefit a special act has been passed. The House of Delegates, before adjournment on last Friday, passed a joint resolution suspending the payment of this January interest, but the Senate adjourned without action upon it. Nevertheless, the Auditors and Treasurer consider themselves bound by the opinion of the Attorney-General, who has officially declared that there is no authority for the payment in the Funding act nor in any other existing statute—further legislation being required. The joint resolution suspending the funding is still in the hands of Gov. WALKER, who, it is positively asserted, will veto it, and who is reported to be now preparing a message to both branches of the General Assembly, stating in full his reasons for disapproval. $15,000,000 of the amount of the one-third of the debt to be "certificated" and postponed to await a settlement with West Virginia—which settlement is a most remote and doubtful contingency.

THE STATE PRISON.

There are 825 convicts in the Virginia Penitentiary, of whom 204 were received during the past year, or 255 negroes and 49 whites. Of the whole number of present convicts, 672 are negroes and 153 are whites. Of the negro convicts, 63 are women; of the white convicts, 4 are women. As the Penitentiary has at present only 170 small cells, of course it would be difficult to find lodgement in the institution for all of them; but there are at work on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, under guard, 289 negro convicts and 83 whites—total, 432—leaving only 393 of all colors and sexes in the prison. Those at the Penitentiary are made to work—some as boot and shoe-makers, or blacksmiths, weavers, wheelwrights, carpenters, coopers, broom-makers, stonecutters, cooks, common laborers, &c. The result of this is that, whereas the Penitentiary, in 1869, cost the State $30,000, there is for the past year a balance of $3,000 in the credit of its manufactures and labor. The institution has recently had some new workshops added to it, and there is every prospect that its financial showing for the future will grow better and better. Of the convicts now in the Penitentiary, (or constructively there,) one were born in Virginia—591 negroes and 94 whites; 3 only, South white, in West Virginia; 19 in Maryland, 8 whites and 6 negroes; 18 in North Carolina, 40 negroes and 9 whites; 6 in Pennsylvania, 5 whites and 1 negro; 9 in Georgia, 8 whites and 1 negro; 5 in New-York, 4 whites and 1 negro; and among the remainder are natives of nearly every State in the Union, and of nearly every country of Europe.

LEGALITY.

There are three lunatic asylums in Virginia: the Western, at Staunton; the Eastern, at Williamsburg, and the Central, at Richmond. The last has been instituted since the war, and is intended exclusively for negroes. The Western asylum contains 343 patients, of whom 185 are males and 158 are females. The expenditures of this asylum for the past year amounted to a little over $70,000, leaving a balance of $3,836 out of $80,000 appropriated by the State for the year, and funds received from pay patients and the sale of articles manufactured in the asylum. In the Eastern Asylum there are 211 patients, 99 being males and 112 females. The disbursements of this asylum for the past year were $60,162 32. With the appropriation of $80,000 from the State, the money received from pay patients, &c., there is a balance on hand with the Treasurer of over $2,000. In the Central (colored) Asylum there are 175 patients, of which 70 are males and 95 are females. Fifty thousand dollars was appropriated by the Legislature to support this asylum for the past year, and it sufficed, with a balance over of about $1,800. The location and buildings of this colored asylum are merely temporary, and an asylum for colored lunatics will probably be permanently located in a more Southern portion of the State. The reports of all three of the asylums complain of their crowded condition, and of how many applicants they have to reject. These are insane persons (chiefly colored) in nearly every jail in the State, and many are at large, or confined in private quarters, who should be in an asylum. There is a bill now before the Legislature to establish the Southside Lunatic Asylum, (for whites,) to be located at or near Lynchburg. Thirty thousand dollars was appropriated last year to enlarge the Eastern Asylum, and the Superintendent and Directors now ask for $100,000 for additional extension and repairs.

THE DEAF AND DUMB AND THE BLIND.

There is only one asylum for the deaf and dumb and the blind, located at Staunton. In the Deaf and Dumb Department there are 92 pupils, of which 44 are girls and 48 are boys. In the Blind Department there are 22 pupils, or 11 girls and 11 boys. These figures seem to show that, while females are more subject to insanity, males are more liable to become deaf and blind. This institution is almost wholly supported by an annuity from the State. There is no asylum for colored deaf and dumb or blind in Virginia, and it is contended that there are as few of them that there is no necessity for an asylum for them. This is a curious fact, if it be one.

ILLNESS OF A BISHOP.

Right Rev. JOHN MCGILL, Catholic Bishop of Richmond, is lying in critical peril. He has been very low for some weeks. He has been Catholic Bishop of this city for a great number of years, (over a quarter century, I believe,) and his high abilities and Christian character have won for him the respect and love of all denominations. His death will be greatly lamented.

RAID ON GAMBLERS BY A LOSING OFFICIAL.

Last week our police, in a sudden spasm of morality, pounced down upon the numerous gambling "hells" that they had so long tolerated, and captured several well-known sports and their apparatus. The apparatus, by our laws, are devoted to Commission, and the gamblers themselves have been bound over to appear to answer indictments. This movement has effected little good, as all the "hells" are doing business as usual. But the gamblers themselves have not rested quietly under the measures taken against them, and they promise to make early developments to show that the city official who was the prime mover of the descent upon them has recently been losing heavily at faro, and that it is no sense of duty, but a spirit of spite and revenge that upon him so enforces the law that has so long lain a dead letter in his hands.

THE NEW-YORK SIXTH.

The First (and only) Regiment of Virginia Volunteer Militia had its first parade here this afternoon, on the order of a drinking rate. There have been no recent developments yet organized in the State. Several have been enrolled, but their officers have never been able to get commissions. The Boards of Military Examiners are so strict as the colored officers that none of them have been through the critical examination yet. A colored company over in Manchester has persisted in parading and drilling under the command of a negro named BAILEY. BAILEY was once taken up on account of the Manchester authorities and warned not to monkey his company. He has not heeded the warning, and he has been arrested again, and will probably be punished by the city authorities.

BELDEN, WILLIAMS & Co., bankers, of Washington City, were several years ago the agents of this State for the sale of bonds, &c. The firm failed, Virginia being among its principal creditors. The sum of ten thousand dollars has just been realized for the State from the assets of the bankrupts, and it is expected that more will yet be recovered. E.

SHALL WOMEN VOTE?

Decision by Judge Sharswood, of Pennsylvania.

From the Philadelphia Bulletin, Dec. 30.

NEIL PRINE, Justice SHARSWOOD.—This morning the Judge delivered the following interesting opinion:

SUSANNA vs. SWEEZY.—The plaintiff, a woman, declares against the defendants, election officers of the Eleventh Election Division of the Fourteenth Ward of the City of Philadelphia, for refusing her vote at the general election held on the 10th day of October, 1871, averring that she was duly qualified in all respects according to the Constitution and laws of this Commonwealth. The defendants demur, and assign among other causes of demurrer that the declaration shows that the plaintiff is not a freeman in the sense in which that word is used in the Constitution, article 3, section 1. It is beyond all question the provisions of the ninth article of the Constitution, commonly called the Declaration of Rights, extend to and include both sexes, and that when the words "man" or "men" are therein used they comprehend also women. It is equally clear that a woman who is born in this country or naturalized as she may be under the acts of Congress, is a citizen as fully entitled to the protection of the Government as a man, and with a right fully to enjoy all the privileges which presently belong to citizens. But it does not follow that the elective franchise is one of their privileges. That is exclusively regulated by the Constitution, which has excluded many others from it by reason of race, non-payment of taxes, non-residence within the Commonwealth and the election district for a certain period of time. Now can it be said that the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States have any bearing or application upon the question. The third article, section 4, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, does not, in this respect at least, abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, for the elective franchise is not one of them, nor is the right of the plaintiff to vote denied or abridged "on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude."

We are reduced, then, to the simple inquiry whether the word "freeman" in article 3, section 1, Constitution of Pennsylvania, was intended to confine the right of voting to citizens of the male sex. This section, so far as the matter in hand is concerned, is in effect from the Constitution of 1790, and that followed also the Constitution of 1776. In the latter, chapter 2, section 9, it is provided: "Every freeman, of the full age of twenty-one years, having resided in this State for the space of one whole year next before the day of election for Representatives, and paid public taxes during that time, shall enjoy the right of an elector, provided always that sons of freeholders of the age of twenty-one years shall be entitled to vote, although they have not paid taxes." The Constitution of 1790 had also a similar provise, showing clearly that by "freeman" only a male was intended. For, surely, had it not been so, the daughters, as well as the sons of "freeholders" or of qualified electors, would have been included. When the meaning of the word "freeman" is thus clearly ascertained from the language of the Constitution of 1776 and 1790, there can be no doubt that it ought to have the same meaning in the amended Constitution of 1838, although the proviso is not expressed in the same form—not being confined to the sons of qualified electors, but establishing between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-two. The sole, only, one other clause of the Constitution in which this word "freeman" is used, and there it most emphatically is confined to males. Article 6, section 2, declares that "the freemen of this Commonwealth shall be armed, organized and disciplined for its defense when" and in such manner as may be directed by law." It is clear that the Constitution contemplates that the same class of persons who do the voting shall also do the fighting. The corresponding clause in the Constitution of 1790 is still clearer and more emphatic: "The freemen of this Commonwealth and their sons shall be trained and armed for its defense." Chapter 5, section 5. The uniform construction of the provincial constitutions and charters in which the same word is employed, as well as under the constitutions since the Revolution, has been in accordance with the decision that none but males have the right to vote. Contemporanea expositio est optima ad legitimam sententiam. In the Commonwealth vs. NORRIS et al., 3 Hazard's Reg. 323, the Supreme Court of this State decided, when the charter of a church gave the right to vote to members generally, that the fact that for twenty-five years the females of the church had not voted, was conclusive. Chief-Justice GIBSON remarked: "There is no safer exposition of what was intended by such an instrument than usage." We can say that we have in Pennsylvania a uniform and uninterrupted usage of nearly two hundred years showing that women were never intended to possess the elective franchise. Such a usage ought to settle the construction, even if the words of the Constitution were more general and comprehensive than we have seen them to be.

Judgment for the defendant.

THE LIST OF THE LOST.

Little Yet Known of the Number of Lives Lost by the Chicago Fire—Names of Those Still Reported Missing.

From the Chicago Times, Dec. 30.

The estimates of the number who perished in the great fire have varied from 200 to 600. But when it is remembered that the hot breath of the conflagration withered to ashes great cubes of building stone, and then blew the ashes out into the lake, it is sadly probable that many human bodies suffered precisely the same fate. Over 300 bodies, or portions of bodies, have been recovered. Nearly all of these have been identified, and the work of clearing away the rubbish is yet a long way from completion. Now, through the exertions of the Relief and Aid Society, the names of a host of others have been reconstructed as missing since the fire. Of these it is fair to presume that at least three-fourths must be added to the list of victims. The letters of distressful inquiry which have been pouring in ever since for friends known to have been residing in the city have been attended also with all the care which could possibly be bestowed upon them. It is gratifying to know that the occasional publication of the names of parties missing has already borne good results, several having by this means been placed in communication with their friends. Some have hailed the calamity as affording an available cloak for escape from debts which bore heavily on them, and these will naturally conspire to render their whereabouts a mystery; others have been lost, and were such outcast and friendless ones that not a soul exists to think it worth while to make inquiry as to their present condition. The full list of those known to be missing is as follows:

A LEADING QUESTION.

Rapid Transit—Should the City Build it Road?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The TIMES quite recently, reviewing the several railroad schemes that were preparing to press themselves upon the Legislature at its coming session, expressed the apprehension that, by their very numbers and conflicting interests, they may defeat each other, and no effective bill be passed. It is a well-grounded apprehension. It was in 1863 that Mr. SCHUYLER, at present Engineer of the New-York and New-Haven Company, and others, presented an application to the Legislature for a charter to build a depressed road, uncovered for the most part, extending from the Battery to the Harlem River. It was opposed, and the application was defeated. Had that bill been passed, and the road built, New-York would today have contained 1,000,000 inhabitants, instead of less than 1,000,000, and have been a compactly built-up City, possessing a taxable property yielding at one per cent. a greater amount of revenue than she is now getting at two and a half times the rate of taxation.

From that day to this, and especially during the last ten years, efforts to procure charters of some kind, have been constant and importunate. Vast sums of money have been spent, a million of our legitimate population have been driven away to other States and countries, and $250,000,000 of legitimate City taxes have gone with them—the most enormous burdens of personal discomfort and tax upon time and patience have been endured by those who remain—and, though half-a-dozen charters have been passed from time to time, with the promise of each of immediately breaking ground, not a sod has yet been turned, not a stone has been laid, and the people continue to grumble and "hang by the strap," or go a-foot as before.

And what is the prospect ahead? Are there fewer schemes on foot? Are the schemers less energetic or determined? Are their interests less? On the contrary, every element of defeat which has existed for the ten years past, exists with double force today, intensified by the increasing interests involved, and I predict that though a dozen charters may be procured, we shall get no railroad for the next ten years to come, unless it be one like the "Viaduct," more terrible in its infliction upon the people than was the evil it was intended to remove. It is a shame and a humiliation that a million people, who pay $36,000,000 of taxes annually into the City Treasury, should be abandoned by the government that thus extorts their money, and turned over to be plundered by irresponsible corporations; that they are now on their knees begging a private monopoly to afford them the means of prosecuting the very business upon which that government maintains its existence.

The proposition before us is a very simple one. Whoever builds us a road, whether the City or private capitalists, the people have got to pay for it; and the question is, shall we pay it in fifteen and twenty cent fares, (see Viaduct charter,) to enable private monopolists to divide ten per cent. upon three-watered stock, or shall we pay only the interest on the proper cost of the road, with the cost of working, and a small additional sum as a sinking fund to ultimately retire the debt. In the one case the fare will never exceed five cents, and we shall have a road immediately—in the other we shall pay ten to fifteen cents, (see Central Underground charter,) or fifteen and twenty cents (see Viaduct charter) and we shall have no road when we can.

Now let us suppose a depressed road of forty feet in width for four tracks, and fourteen in depth, constructed on the Arcade plan, with narrow open cut in the center for light and ventilation, and extending from the Battery to Harlem River, Fourth-avenue, from Union Square, Broadway, as Greenwich-street, West Broadway, Laurens-street, Sixth and Ninth avenues, will cost $20,000,000. A careful estimate has been made, showing the cost of such a road, fully equipped, will be less than $18,000,000; but let it all it be found necessary to pay interest on that sum at seven per cent, is $1,260,000. To pay this would require a daily net earning of $3,835 50. If the road should move but 100,000 passengers daily, (thirty per cent. more than the Third-avenue horse-cars alone now move,) its gross daily earnings at five cents each is $5,000. Allowing its proportion of the cost of the City for its working expenses, (and they will ultimately do far more,) we have as the very outset, this road at five cents fare, paying its own way, and providing a fund to ultimately extinguish its cost without the charge of a dollar to a single taxpayer. But this is not by any means a complete statement of the benefits to be derived from the tracks, yet Mr. FOX, its resident Engineer, says it has carried in a single day 240,485 passengers. Our road with four tracks must have more than double its capacity, for our swift trains are not impeded by any necessity for frequent stopping, and the time saved is such as to enable us to throw almost the entire moving population upon it. Let us suppose the road will carry 400,000 passengers daily, instead of 100,000, and we shall see that with a fare of three cents, or even two cents, we shall still pay its expenses, and leave a sinking fund accumulating without any tax to taxation. And all this time the City sinks into utter insignificance compared to another—the effect of the road upon valuation of property. It has been many times shown elsewhere that the immediate effect of this improvement upon the 70,000 vacant lots in this City will be to more than double their value, raising the amount of tax revenues now derived from them from less than $6,000,000 to more than $10,000,000, so here loss, and as improved lots, build upon them less than $6,000,000 to more than $20,000,000, or so that we shall be able to meet all our City expenses hereafter, including the interest on the bonds, at a rate of taxation not greater than one per cent.

The question then is, Shall we build this road ourselves, and thus secure this immense relief from the burdens of taxation, and at the same time the almost free transportation of our people, or shall we turn it over to a monopoly, getting the road when we can and charging ourselves with a cost utterly destructive to every business prosperity and interest? I have referred only to a west side route. Of course, a similar accommodation must be had for the east side. Fourth-avenue continued down to the City Hall and a connection with the East River Bridge, is obviously the proper route for such a road. The same argument exists for building it by the City. But three monopolies are already in possession of the larger part of that route. They have expended large sums of money there, and have acquired interests which should be respected. I take it for granted, therefore, that when offered the alternative of building the road and relieving them from their heavy tax burdens, or of having the City build it for her own, and charging them a proper interest on its cost, they will be quick to build the road. If not, let the City build it, and let them pay for the advantages they enjoy. A bill carrying out these views was introduced into the Legislature last Winter. It appointed a commission whose names were at once a guarantee of the integrity and prompt execution of the work, and provided the funds by issuing City bonds for that purpose. But the bill had no provision for fund behind it—no provision in it for "the boys," and not a dollar of plunder for anybody. It, of course, found no favor with the Legislature. At the coming session it will be introduced again.

And now, Mr. Editor, is it not time that our City journals should take up the matter in a practical way? It is no credit to us as men that a journal like the TIMES should feel the pressure like this only "something suggestive," while its pages were made pictorial and its columns elegant in favor of the "Viaduct," whose very first measure was the destruction of trade property enough to pay, with its taxes, the interest on the City bonds for a City road; and whose next tax, middle tax, would, with nearly, or quite, the whole of its expense cost of construction, while it also saddled them with fifteen or twenty cent fares as the cost of riding upon it. For is it creditable that a paper like the Evening Post should still hope this scheme of public plunder may be carried into execution.

The TIMES has lifted its mighty forward one column; will it not bear the standard as we move toward another, not less beneficent? Let us have this road if we have it without delay, whether we have it by means of the City new

We read in a City paper, which has hitherto supported the Tammany Ring, the following paragraph:

"One thing is evident among all these squabblings, fishings, bargainings and tradings at Albany, and that is that political reform is a most barefaced humbug, and that the people who honestly thought they had purified the body politic at the recent election, stand a good chance of finding a legislative session this Winter at the State capital that for corruption, lobbying, buying and selling, will cast all its infamous predecessors into the shade."

This is, perhaps, a natural view for Ring papers to take; but there is no danger of its turning out to be the true view. The journal which makes the above remarks has conspicuously failed to appreciate the force and tendency of public opinion. It does not even now understand the spirit which animates the people. They are fully resolved that political reform shall not be "a most barefaced humbug"—and they will succeed. The people are greater than the wire-pullers and the politicians—a fact which we hope will some day receive due notice in the "intellectual department" of the Herald.

The movement against Tweed will be at once commenced in the Legislature. In common with Tom Fields, he has not yet dared to show himself at Albany. The memorial to be presented to the Legislature today is with the view of preventing him making any official appearance there at all. It is drawn up in the interests of O'Donovan Rossa, and after reciting the unanswered charges made against Tweed in the columns of the Times, and now being prosecuted in the Courts, it proceeds to detail the fraudulent means by which his election to the Senate was procured, and concludes by demanding his exclusion from that body. The Senate will only be paying the needful respect to its own dignity, and to the wishes of the people it represents, by granting the request embodied in the memorial.

A Good Certainty.

The Assembly has undoubtedly begun well in deciding upon the choice of Mr. Henry Sharp for Speaker. There will probably be a great beating of the gong about "Federal influence," and all the rest of it, but the plain truth of the matter appears to be that no suspicion of corruption rests upon Henry Sharp, while Alvord, his chief competitor, is the representative of all the mischievous "Rings" now in existence. This is quite enough to decide the superior claims of Mr. Sharp. We have had no particular candidate to recommend—any honest man would have satisfied us; and we begin the session, as we mean to go on, with a full determination to have no mystery or secrets in our dealings toward the public. We have the deepest interest in securing the work of reform which we were so anxious to bring about, and for which we have earnestly labored. We may be wrong in some of our conclusions, but at any rate we shall always tell our readers plainly the grounds upon which we form these conclusions, and leave them to judge between us and our opponents. We have no clique to serve. The public who responded to our appeals in the November elections, are entitled to straightforward treatment from us, and that, at least, they shall always have.

There need not be much doubt as to the wisdom of selecting Mr. Smith in preference to Mr. Alvord. Take the admissions of the journals which have certainly not been very prominent in the work of reform. The Herald yesterday said of Alvord: "He has the full strength of the Canal and Railroad Rings. The lobby leaders are all loud supporters of Alvord, and, as they are well known to pay handsomely the well amounts they receive, and never to go back on their friends, they have great influence on all Assemblymen who are ready to be 'seen.' In addition to these the powerful Canal Ring, represented by Doc Dennison, of Syracuse, Jim Belden, J. Lord, George Lord, Willard P. Johnson, George C. Greene, Canal Appraiser, Wasson, Ex-Canal Appraiser, and other contractors, using its great influence in Alvord's favor. The canal men have important interests at stake, which will be affected by the result of the organization of the House. In addition to these Alvord derives strength from such old members as Mat Remus, Jeremy Hunter, Alberger, and others, who understand the importance of having a friend in the Speaker's chair, and who are experts at making combinations on the floor. Negotiations have already been opened, it is said, between Tom Stewart and Police Commissioner Hank Smith, as the representatives of Twombly and Alvord," &c. &c.

The Albany correspondent of the Sun lets the "cat out of the bag" in a similar manner. He says that the Erie Ring was in Alvord's favor. Mr. Horace Greeley and Mark Lanagan—a singular combination—were working in the same interest. A. D. Barbour, the professional briber, was exerting himself to the utmost for Alvord. By another curious coincidence, Tweed's old quarters at the Delavan House were occupied by Horace Greeley. We refer our readers, for a full insight into the contest for the Speakership, to the letter from our Albany correspondent, who has had many years' experience of legislative doings, and whom we should not trust as we do if we did not know that he is not to be reached by the sinister influences which surround men at Albany.

Altogether, we can safely assure the public that the choice of Mr. Sharp is another great victory for reform—we hope it will prove the crowning victory. If Mr. Sharp goes wrong, we shall very soon inform the public—he has no claim to our support, except in so far as he faithfully protects the interests of the community. The new Attorney-General, Francis Barlow, is eager for the work which lies before him. We shall not only soon have the new charter before the Legislature, but the corrupt Judges will be impeached, and the Erie Ring will be attacked. It is not too much to say that this work would have been attempted under enormous, perhaps insuperable difficulties, had Alvord been made Speaker. In such a matter as this, to begin the work well is half way toward finishing it well. The Tammany and Erie Rings are not dead, but they can be prevented from doing much further mischief if the Legislature will do its duty; and yesterday they gave an earnest of their intentions. We can only say again that when anything goes wrong, we will candidly tell the public; and in the meantime we ask them not to be discouraged by the clamors of Fenton, Erne, or Tammany journals, but to believe that the right cause is bound to win.

The Work of the Children's Aid Society.

There is one element in the future of the City of New-York which is unsurpassed in importance by any other. It is the fate of its poor children—of that vast multitude of young boys and girls who, from one cause or another, are deprived of the influences of a decent and comfortable home, and left to grow up as best they can in the midst of poverty, temptation, ignorance and degradation. These children are the material from which the "dangerous classes" are recruited. They furnish apprentices to thievery and violence, and victims to prostitution and the rum-hole. The boys swell the ranks of ignorant and vicious voters, who clog the advance of our political institutions, drag them down with abuse and perversion. The girls are not only lost to that body of virtuous women whose work and influence are the safeguards of civilization, but they are made to feed the worst and most corrupting vices and passions with which civilization has to contend.

This element in the future of our City is not only one of prime importance, it is one with which individuals can do so little that it may as well be said at once that they can do nothing. Response to beggars at the door only aggravates instead of suppressing the evil, for while it furnishes but a transient relief to the few worthy who are thus reached, it encourages idleness and prevents the growth of self-respect. Subscriptions to orphan asylums, excellent in themselves, reach but a small portion of a small class. Other charitable institutions, like the very admirable Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor, address themselves to palliating the evil in a later stage, when palliation is all that can be attempted. Public schools only meet the cases of those who are one stage above the class we refer to, and who have a home from which some one is willing and ready to send them to school.

Fortunately for our City, it has had provided for it an instrumentality through which we can all work toward the proper management of the poor children. Thanks to the foresight and devotion of the men who, seventeen years ago, laid the modest foundation of the now beneficent Children's Aid Society, it is in the power of each of us who wishes to do so to contribute without waste, and with confidence, to the improvement of the conditions of the homeless or worse than homeless children. This Society has gradually called into existence an elaborate and efficient machinery for the performance of this work. Its principal agencies are five lodging-houses, nineteen industrial schools, and eleven night schools. It is impossible to exaggerate the intelligence, energy, and skill with which these agencies are employed. At the lodging-houses the boys and girls who have no other and no fit homes, are supplied with clean and comfortable quarters, with plenty of wholesome food, and with conveniences for bathing, while their clothing is looked after, mended, cleaned, and renewed in good pieces; they are instructed in the simple branches of study, and administrators are afforded them of a peculiarly interesting and perfectly pure and healthy character. Here, it will be seen, are the elements of a good home, strongly contrasted with the conditions by which the children are surrounded in the life from which they are rescued. Those who can pay are charged a very small sum for these privileges, a practice which encourages thrift, while it does not prevent the sense of kindliness and helpfulness on the part of the managers of the institutions.

In the industrial schools, which are for girls, the children are taught to sew by hand and on machines, and taught thoroughly, not in a way to make them simply dabsters, but so that they can help themselves, and, at a proper age, earn their own living.

In the night schools, little more is attempted than to open the eyes of the scholars to the fact that there is something better than the dirt, and ignorance, and vice of the streets, and to point out, as far as possible, the way to attain it. All these instrumentalities are supplemented by the plan of emigration which takes the children from their City surroundings and places them in healthy homes, with honest work to do, and pure influences about them. This is mainly done in the West, only one of every eight children thus provided for being placed in the City.

Figures can but inadequately express the extent of the work thus accomplished, but they tell a great deal. Within the last year, more than twenty-four thousand children have been brought under the influence of one or other of the Society's institutions. Of these, 3,236 have been provided with permanent homes, under the supervision of careful agents. This swells the number thus cared for since the establishment of the Society, in 1854, to 25,215. From the free Sewing-machine School, 365 operators have been sent into the world, and the average number of those receiving instruction in this industry is two thousand per year. This work is beginning to tell directly on the statistics of crime. The Secretary finds a remarkable decrease in arrests for those offenses which homeless boys and girls are peculiarly liable to commit, and claims, with justice, that the work of the Society is largely to be credited with producing this decrease. Thus, the commitments of females for vagrancy have fallen in eleven years from 5,890 to 548, in spite of the increase of population. Commitments of females for petit larceny have fallen, in twelve years, from 944 to 572. The same tendency is observable in the commitments of males for offenses in which boys are most frequently detected. It is impossible to mistake the significance of these facts. No one who has investigated the work of the Society can doubt its peculiar usefulness. We do not hesitate to commend it unqualifiedly to our readers, and we once more entreat them to send substantial help in money to Mr. C. L. Brace, of No. 19 East Fourth-street.

The Aldermanic Muddle.

The proverb about rogues falling out received pretty forcible illustration by yesterday's proceedings in the Chamber of the Board of Aldermen. Hall had resolved to stick to his friends to the last, and had indeed drawn up his reasons for disregarding Judge Brady's prohibition against reappointing the old Board, and against recognizing any other save the Reform Board as the Common Council of the City of New-York. But Hall's reputation for trustworthiness—never of the best—has been steadily declining of late, and Coman, Wolfman & Co. expressed in their forcible vernacular the conviction that the Mayor was about to "go back on them." The happy suggestion of their Clerk was, therefore, taken up with alacrity, and the last moments of the Tammany Board were occupied by a little comedy of Reform, in which the members appeared for the first and last time in the rôle of pure-minded and incorruptible patriots.

It was on Oct. 24 that the Associated Committee of Citizens gave in their report upon the condition of the City and County finances, in which they stated, affording at the same time very conclusive proofs for the assertion, that "frauds and robberies of the most infamous character have been committed, with the connivance and co-operation of some of the officials who were appointed to guard the interests of the people." The Aldermen who had been associated with Mr. Booth's Committee withdrew from any active participation in its labors when they found that the work was being prosecuted in good faith. They refused to concur either in the main conclusions of the report, or to sign the reports of the subcommittees on which they had served. Two months of reflection have, however, enabled Messrs. Dimond, Schlichting, Plunkitt, and Wolfman, to come to the conclusion that the report of their associates was "fully justified and called for by the facts." Thereupon the Board of newly-converted Reformers proceeded to instruct Mr. O'Conor and Mr. Hardy to prepare articles of impeachment against the Mayor "for malfeasance and misfeasance in office."

As a starting gift to the public, this resolution would not have been amiss. As an effort to "get behind" the Mayor and to help them to defy the law, it was an obvious insult to the public understanding. The action of Hall in the case with which the Aldermen had confronted him, were characterized by his usual airy contempt for official decency. He told the Aldermen blunt that but for the unexpected hostility of the old Board, he would have taken advantage of a legal quibble to act in a manner which would probably have occasioned a riot in and around the City Hall. He plainly intimated that he did not care a rush either for the rights of the people, or for the mandate of the Supreme Court, and that his personal interests were the only things which, as Mayor of the City, he felt bound to consult. Hall's appointment was a mistake with which the Reform Board of Aldermen could readily have dispensed. Their election to office involved an all but universal condemnation of the man who cynically gave them the benefit of a title which their own appeal to the Courts had declared to be an illegal one. Of course, the new Board was not responsible for the Mayor's offensive patronage, but we think it would have consulted its self-respect in abstaining from anything approaching to a show of gratitude in return. We fail to see that there was any crying necessity for rescinding the impeachment resolution of the late Board of Aldermen. The quarrel between the Mayor and his late backers was an affair with which the new men had nothing to do, and the resolution proceeding from it might, at least, have been left over for consideration.

Without the formality of consulting counsel on what is strictly a legal point, the new Board declared, in a very loosely-worded resolution, that the decision of their predecessors is "void and of no effect." If this was based upon Hall's opinion, embodied in his letter to the Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, then it proceeds upon the assumption that section 29 of the charter of 1870 is a perfect specimen of the legal trickery with which that instrument abounds. That section vests the power of impeachment in the resolutions of two-thirds of the two Boards of the Common Council. It further provides for the trial of such impeachment by the full Court of Common Pleas, and prescribes it as the duty of the Court to define, by rule, "the mode of impeachment and trial of charges." Hall's letter assumes that articles of impeachment were passed by the Common Council; their resolution simply instructs counsel to prepare articles of impeachment. The initiative of the Aldermanic Boards is clearly enough provided for by the charter, and it would be a somewhat preposterous method of legal interpretation to suppose that the clause in question debarred them from taking any action at all until the Court of Common Pleas should have defined the mode of conducting an impeachment, not yet resolved upon.

It is hardly necessary to remark that the scenes which attended the service of Judge Cardozo's order upon the members of the old Board were worthy of the worst days of Erie litigation. As a whole, the character of the Common Council had never risen above that of the rum-sellers and low politicians who chiefly composed it. At the legal termination of their official existence, they behaved simply like the rowdies which the majority of them had always been. The old Board has fallen, amid public congratulations, and there is but one legacy of theirs which their successors might fitly adopt, and that is the one which they have somewhat hastily repudiated.

Marriages, Births, and Deaths.

In our suggestions with reference to the reorganization of the Health Board, we laid particular emphasis on the necessity of reform in the direction of vital statistics. Society has a profound interest in the correct registration of births, deaths, and marriages. Not only social morals, but also property, the rights of heirs, the question of titles, and many others, are involved, which closely concern every member of a civilized community. It becomes the duty of the civil authorities, therefore, to so provide that these statistics shall be accurately and fully reported; the older communities of Europe are consequently scrupulously exact in regard to them. In New-York, however, we have hitherto been extremely careless about securing these essential statistics, except in the matter of deaths, which, it is only fair to say, are here reported with a completeness perhaps unparalleled by European cities. Our record of deaths, indeed, is so near absolute perfection as to make it impossible for us to suggest improvement in it. The fact that New-York is entirely surrounded by water, and every custodian of a bridge, ferry-boat, car, express and other means of conveyance of heavy bodies is instructed and obliged to require a burial permit of whomsoever has charge of a dead body, aids essentially to bring about this completeness. It sometimes happens that a corpse is smuggled out of the City, but the opportunities for evasion of the law are rare, and the chances of detection numerous.

Such exceptional cases may, therefore, be safely left out of the calculation. The twenty-seven thousand deaths now annually reported undoubtedly include nine hundred and ninety-nine in every thousand that occur, and form as complete a record as it is possible to obtain. This accuracy of death statistics, in one respect, tells against New-York, for, by reason of it, we get the name of a higher rate of mortality and consequent unhealthfulness than we deserve. In Philadelphia, for instance, where such statistics are less perfectly gathered, there is apparently a lower death rate than in New-York, which, in truth, is probably not the case. Only two cities on this continent show by their statistics so high a death rate as New-York—New-Orleans and Montreal. The fact of the large influx of immigration to this port naturally tends to aid to give us this unenviable distinction; but for more than this the exceptional accuracy of our death returns produces the result. In the matter of the registry of births and marriages, however, we are woefully deficient. Of the twenty thousand marriages that, it is safe to say, annually occur in New-York, not more than ten or twelve thousand are reported to the Register. This inaccuracy in part grows out of our Democratic constitution of society and the absence of any ecclesiastical law, but more from certain remedial defects of our system of registration.

To obviate these we have recommended the appointment of a considerable class of "sub-registrars," each one to live in a certain district known to him, and authorized and instructed to obtain from all persons concerned in celebrating a marriage a full record of every marriage performed, heavy legal penalties being imposed upon all ministers and magistrates who do not make such a return. The question of divorce occupies a large part of the attention of a certain class of social reformers, but after all that of marriage is the more important, and, as it more intimately concerns a coming generation, property, morals, the family and the public generally, it first invites the thought and attention of the true reformer. Whether we adopt the French system of marriage before a notary as absolutely necessary to its legality, whatever may be the subsequent religious ceremony, or not, it becomes us, in the interests of good morals and property, also to so provide that marriage shall be faithfully registered. At present, we believe, the Roman Catholic priests in the City are among the most remiss in the matter of such returns, and their power with the King and in City politics has been such that they have not been punished, as they should have been, for their frequent and flagrant violations of the law in regard to them.

With regard to births also, our records are exceedingly incomplete. The law of increase of population, is that the births are about one-third greater than the deaths, and yet though our deaths, as we have said, are faithfully reported, and amount to about twenty-seven thousand annually, our births as returned reach only about twenty thousand, whereas, they are probably between thirty-five and forty thousand. And even this small proportion of return was much lower before our present Register of Record—Dr. Chester P. Kunzell—came into office. By strong personal effort among physicians, and in their societies, he has succeeded in calling their attention to the propriety and necessity of accuracy in the reporting and registry of births, and the result has been that there is the large increase in these returns, since he took office, of between five and ten thousand.

But no individual efforts, unaided by legislative action, can accomplish the end that is so desirable. It becomes of the highest importance, therefore, that this subject should receive careful attention in any new Charter given the City.

Mr. Vincent Colyer's "Lambs."

The letter we printed yesterday from one of the only two survivors of the Wickenburg massacre in which poor Loring fell, was doubtless read with painful interest. It gave the first detailed and authentic account yet published on this side, at least, of that tragic episode, and, if possible, aggravated its atrocity. But it relates one incident which, without at all wishing to discredit Mr. Kruger's plain and straight-forward narrative, we sincerely hope may prove to be unfounded or exaggerated. The conduct ascribed to the commanding officer of the United States post at Camp Date Creek seems incredible in its inhumanity. It is conceivable that in the worst aspect of the case, knowing the outrage to have been committed by friendly Indians from his own reservation, Capt. O'Brien may have wished to stifle investigation, as Mr. Kruger asserts. But that any man should have denied shelter to the two bleeding and wretched survivors of the massacre, both of them riddled with wounds, and one of them a woman, we are reluctant to believe. We trust that Capt. O'Brien's explanation, or the official inquiry which is imperatively demanded, will put that officer's conduct in a more creditable light.

But if all that Mr. Kruger asserts is true, if these marauders were really Indians from a friendly reservation, then we are driven back to the consideration of a graver question than the particular dereliction of any public officer. It is evident that we have not yet hit on the proper method of dealing with these savages. Mr. Vincent Colyer went among them with honeyed words and lavish presents, and also, be it noted, a formidable escort, and told us that these fierce warriors of the prairie were to be hereafter as lambs. But meantime, in his very track, his lambs were burning and murdering and scalping with renewed ardor, and from all the country went up a wail of terrified remonstrance against Mr. Colyer's complacent assumption. Now this point ought not to be difficult of settlement. Either these savages, being kindly treated, do, generally speaking, take advantage of this leniency to slay and ravage as before, or they do not. The matter ought to be decided at once, that we may know whether to abide by Mr. Colyer's gentle programme, or the sterner policy advocated by Gov. Stanford and Gen. Crook, and supported by most of the far-western people. It is impossible that so frightful an atrocity as the Wickenburg massacre, within the borders of civilization too, should be repeated. It is impossible that we should continue to furnish these fierce and treacherous tribes with food and clothing, and with arms to be used in murdering our own citizens. In dealing with these savages we must have respect to our own humanity and their weakness, but not less to the lives of our own people and the necessities of national development. We trust that Congress will not fail to give this matter its earnest and decisive attention.

An Eminent Expert.

Of late years, a new and curious profession has come into vogue. We allude to that of "experts" in handwriting. These gentlemen's services have for some time been repeatedly called in request in England, especially in disputed will cases, but they seldom made much impression either on Judge or Jury until there arose a master in the craft, Mr. Chabot. It was through a case which occurred a few years since in the London Probate Court, that this gentleman was brought into the first rank of his very limited profession, of which a Mr. Netherclift had up to that time been the chief. The ground of dispute was in relation to the will of a wealthy old yeoman. One side claimed that the will was genuine, the other that it was a forgery. When the turn came for Mr. Chabot's evidence to be given, the counsel for the will gave a contemptuous smile as the expert ascended the box, and my Lord leaned back in his chair in a manner which indicated "I know how much this sort of testimony is worth." By degrees, however, matters underwent a change. Counsel against the will became particularly amused in his bearing. Counsel for the will fidgeted in his seat, and, what was more important, my lord aroused himself and began to take notes. When Mr. Chabot descended from the witness-box he had broken the will. The Judge, in summing up, said that he must confess that previous experience had not disposed him to place much reliance on testimony of this description, but the present case was an exception. Mr. Chabot's evidence was certainly most remarkable. The point to which this accomplished gentleman drew special attention was the fact that he had examined page after page of writing which was admitted by either side to be that of the deceased, and in no case had he found the vowel "O" connected with the other letters in the word in which it occurred; whereas, in the document alleged to be forged, "O" sometimes stood alone, sometimes was joined on to the neighboring letters.

Mr. Chabot's services are now in constant demand, and he ought to be making a very large income. The Tichborne case must alone have put a great many pounds in his pocket. Quite recently he has been employed in two notable suits. One of these—"Fireebrace vs. Fireebrace and others"—is a divorce case. A maid-servant, as often happens in such suits, is a prominent witness. She, it appears, kept a diary, in which she recorded suspicious circumstances in her mistress' conduct. This diary the mistress got hold of, and, the servant alleges, interpolated passages which reflect sadly on the morality of the servant herself, and are thus calculated to weaken the effect of her evidence against Mrs. Fireebrace. Mr. Chabot is of opinion that the alleged interpolations are not in the handwriting of the servant.

The other case was one of libel, in which a lady named Dikes was plaintiff, and a Mr. Shepherd defendant. In January, 1870, a Mr. Burke, to whose son the plaintiff was engaged, received a letter imputing to her improper conduct. On the 14th February, Valentine's day, plaintiff herself received two letters, one containing some indecent verses, and the other some lines from Chaucer. The experts differed strongly in regard to the similarity of the writing with that of Mr. Shepherd. In summing up, the Lord Chief-Justice pointed out that the great merit of Mr. Chabot in such cases was that he gave cogent reasons for his conclusions, and was not content merely to state that he was of such and such an opinion. The jury found for the defendant. Mr. Chabot lately brought his ingenuity to bear upon the vexed question of Junius, and has helped to strengthen the already overwhelming evidence in favor of Sir Philip Francis' authorship of the famous letters.

A New Year's Walk.

Whoever had occasion, yesterday, to walk down Broadway or "the avenue," and was not too intent upon the arduous business of satisfying the requirements of a rendezvous visiting list to take note of what was passing about him, could not have suppressed a certain feeling of melancholy as he made his way along. The day itself was not propitious; heavy clouds overhung the sky; the air was not foggy, or exactly misty, but yet charged with a heaviness of moisture not stimulating to the spirits, even when the fine rain did not actually fall. But what sent the pedestrian's spiritual mercury down to a lower degree was not the absence of bright sun and the presence of gray cloud, but the blackness and sombreness generally of the throng of masculine passers by which he was surrounded. Now and again, perhaps, he jostled a hurrying servant maid, or some forlorn woman, who begged his alms with a New-Year's salutation, but these excepted, he found the thoroughfares he was wont to see illustrated with beautiful faces, and pictorial with the varied colors of tasteful costumes, bereft of the presence of womanhood. Inside the houses that lined the avenues there were assembled many charming women, gracefully receiving their friends, and arrayed in even handsomer apparel than he was accustomed to see them wear on the pavement outside; but that consciousness could not prevent the melancholy excited by the barren street.

It is not every man in New-York who has the opportunity, or, even if he has it, improves it, of enjoying the sight of that gay procession of beautiful and beautifully-dressed women which every fair day may be witnessed on our thoroughfares, in promenade, between the hours of noon and 4 or 5 o'clock. It would be well for many a delver of Wall and South streets if he could give at least one afternoon a week to the pleasure of contemplating it. Perhaps the experience would contribute something toward the creation of that amount of æsthetic taste which is so essential to the development of the educated man.

Moreover, such a walk teaches us that our American woman, certainly of the New-York variety, has perceptibly improved on her progenitor in the matter of physique. Five-and-twenty years ago, it was the habit of foreign visitors to our shores to entertain us with lamentable stories of the degeneracy of the race on this continent; and they specially occupied themselves with contrasting the lean and fragile woman of the United States with her stronger sister of the Old World. That there was some reason then for disparaging conclusions it would be hardly safe to deny, but the contrast of today, no fair observer can affirm to be so marked. The representative of the young generation of New-York women of today is characterized by a fullness of figure, activity of limb, clearness of complexion and vigorous vitality, combined with delicacy of contour and spirituality of expression, that make her eminent among the women of the time, and give to our public promenades a daily procession of youth, health, and beauty well worthy the admiration of every man who delights in feminine perfection, and the absence of which makes our traditional New-Year's so peculiar a day in the calendar.

MINOR TOPICS.

The Democratic members of the Georgia Senate have issued an address defending their action on certain measures which were vetoed by Acting Governor Conley. The most important of these was the bill authorizing a special election for Governor, which the Republicans regarded as so clearly unconstitutional that they declined to nominate a candidate for the position. It is now doubtful if Mr. Conley will contest the right of the Democratic candidate to his place, and a great constitutional question will go unsettled. Another important bill on which the Governor and Legislature differed was one requiring the holders of Georgia bonds, dated since 1868, to present them for registration before next April, and forbidding the State Treasurer to pay any further interest on such bonds until directed. This measure was an extreme one, but there was some warrant for it in the gross frauds known to exist in connection with the bonds issued since 1868.

A Washington correspondent, with an evident bias toward the anti-Grant movement, (if it can be called a movement,) writes that "if we are to have a new party, it will grow out of the debates in Congress this Winter." This is at once a confession of the utter futility of the scheme for a new party, (which Mr. Greeley thinks, nevertheless, might elect him President,) and a clue to the nature of those who sprung the recent debate on the revival of the defunct Retrenchment Committee on the Senate. The correspondent, however, sees that it capital for the new enterprise is to be got in Washington, the Schurz maneuvre is a failure. He asks: "What question is likely to arise that can force reluctant members into each other's arms?" And he goes on to say: "There is but one way, viz., the question of Free Trade or Protection." The writer will see, if he tries to "work out" this suggestion, that on that issue an independent party is hopeless, for the reason that the Republican Party is in fair harmony with the most advanced views, and is constantly becoming more so.

The emotions, whatever they were, called out by the lapsing of the old year and the opening of the new, seemed to have taken vent in the streets only in the most outlandish and meaningless sounds. The blowing of tin horns was a favorite form of relief for youngsters from sixteen to twenty. The utterance of cat-calls, more or less perfect and melancholy, inarticulate groanings and shouting, occasional discharges of fire-arms, and a general tattoo of canes, clubs and umbrellas on every convenient resounding surface, marked the passage of 1871. A drunken song now and then, and, more rarely, a song from jolly but sober throats, was a relief to the hideous din which prevailed all over the City.

A Berlin paper, with a weakness for figures, publishes some curious comparisons of the condition of Europe at the present time with its condition a hundred years ago. Europe now has three hundred millions of inhabitants; then it had about sixty millions. The six principal Powers of Europe now engross four-fifths of its population, as follows: Russia, 71,000,000; Germany, 40,000,000; France, 36,000,000; Austro-Hungary, 36,000,000; Great Britain, 32,000,000; Italy, 26,000,000. A hundred years ago the five great Powers had but half the total population. This was before the partition of Poland.

The Spectator recommends that proposals for something approaching to "home rule" for the three sections of the United Kingdom should be introduced at the approaching session of the British Parliament. Their tenor has been thus described: "Any measure not referring to more than one of the three kingdoms of the realm is to be referred, after the principle had been agreed to in the whole House, to a 'Grand Committee' of the members returned for that kingdom, by whom alone the details should be settled and reported to the House. Thus all three 'Grand Committees' might sit at one and the same time on different bills, and there would be an immense economy of the time of the House, and an immense advantage to the progress of local legislation." The measures for securing this have been suggested by an Irish and Scotch member of the House of Commons. A concession like the one proposed would hardly satisfy the Irish Federalists, who want something more tangible to add to the attractions of Dublin and to conciliate Irish patriotism. As a time-saving device, and as the thin end of the Federal wedge, it might, however, get support from very different quarters.

The Tammany Society—Tweed, Hall, Sweeny and Connolly to Resign or be Expelled.

Even the immediate political associates of the arch-thieves of the City Hall have turned against them. The Tammany Society called a regular meeting of its members for last evening; but as the New-Year's festivities prevented the attendance of a sufficient number to form a quorum, the business transacted was of an informal character. It was an understood thing that some definite action with regard to the connection with Tweed, Hall, Connolly and Sweeny with the Society would be taken. They have received a worthless respite. Like the doomed man, waiting for the gallows, who receives verbal notice that his petition for commutation of punishment is refused before the authorities communicate the information to him officially, these rascals are given to understand that there is no hope for them. The members who did attend the meeting held an informal conference, at which it was resolved that if these four swindlers of the public do not quickly withdraw from the Society, a special meeting should be called to pronounce their expulsion. In Mr. Tweed's case this will be an easy matter, as he is only a Grand Sachem—an Sufferance.

A Memorial to Exclude Tweed from the Senate.

A memorial will be presented to both Houses of the Legislature, today, declaring that Wm. M. Tweed is unfit to sit as a member of the Senate, recalling the transactions of which he has been the head and front, by which the City has been defrauded out of so many millions of money, and strongly urging the Legislature to expunge him. This document, which further sets forth that the election in the Senatorial District was carried by fraud for Tweed in the recent election, is signed in the interest of O'Donovan Rossa, who was the Reform candidate for the Senatorship in the district. It is understood that the Committee of Seventy was largely influential in framing it. There can be little doubt that such a demonstration of the impropriety of allowing Tweed to take his seat will be made, that the Legislature must declare that he has no right to sit in the Senate.

Nebraska State Temperance Convention.

A call has been issued for a State Temperance Mass Convention in Lincoln, Nebraska, on Tuesday, Jan. 16, to organize a State temperance society which shall embrace, so far as practicable, the entire temperance element in the State, and to discuss such measures and mature such plans as the general interests of temperance in all parts of the State demand.

CONNOLLY AT LARGE.

A Special Court Held for His Benefit Yesterday.

Judge Barnard Accepts Nominal Bail—The Tweed Farce Repeated—Only $15,000 Demanded on All the Indictments—Civil Bail Also Furnished.

Contrary to all expectation, contrary to a custom so old that it has become an accepted rule in the Courts, if, indeed, it be not contrary to the statute, Judge BARNARD presented himself in a judicial capacity in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday about noon. Half an hour later Ex-Controller CONNOLLY, accompanied by Sheriff BRENNAN, Deputy Sheriff JOEL STEARNS, JOHN MCKEON, Mr. CONNOLLY's counsel, "EDDY" ANDREWS, Surrogate HUTCHINGS, with a train of some half-dozen followers, appeared in Court, followed by several members of the Press. Mr. CONNOLLY, though not appearing absolutely in ill health, nevertheless presented that careworn appearance which would naturally result from his position and the irksome confinement which he has recently undergone. Half an hour or perhaps less, subsequent to the arrival of Mr. CONNOLLY and his friends, District-Attorney GARVIN and his Assistant, Mr. ALGERNON S. SULLIVAN came and put in an appearance. Both Judge GARVIN and Mr. SULLIVAN came evidently embarrassed and unprepared for the proceeding, the former bearing in his hand a twenty minutes' notice that a motion was about to be made to admit Mr. CONNOLLY to bail, of which the following is a copy:

NEW-YORK, GENERAL SESSION.—The People ss. RICHARD B. CONNOLLY.—Sir: Take notice that a writ of habeas corpus has been issued by Hon. GEORGE G. BARNARD, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York, to inquire into the cause of the imprisonment of RICHARD B. CONNOLLY, now confined in Ludlow-street Jail, that by virtue thereof the Jail of the County of New-York, and that said writ is made returnable forthwith on the service of the writ, before the Hon. GEORGE G. BARNARD, at the County Court-house, in the City of New-York, on the 1st day of January, 1872, at 12½ o'clock P. M.—Dated New-York, Jan. 1, 1872. Yours, &c.,

SAMUEL G. COURTNEY,
Attorney for RICHARD B. CONNOLLY.

To S. B. GARVIN, Esq., District-Attorney County of New-York.

The writ under which Mr. CONNOLLY was brought up, was made returnable by Judge BARNARD forthwith, and was issued on the following petition, sworn to and presented yesterday:

To Hon. George G. Barnard, Justice of the Supreme Court of New-York:

The petition of RICHARD B. CONNOLLY, of the City of New-York, respectfully shows, that he has been a resident of the City of New-York for the past forty years; that he is now sixty-two years of age; that during that period he has held different offices, both of a private and public character; that he has been elected a Senator from one of the Senatorial Districts of this City; that he was a member of the Legislature of this State; that he has been City Clerk of the City and County of New-York, and was re-elected in that office; and for the past [illegible] years has been Controller of the City of New-York, which office he resigned on the 9th day of November, 1871, having been first elected to the office of Controller, afterward appointed, and then re-elected thereto. And your petitioner is now imprisoned in the Jail of the City and County of New-York, situated in Ludlow-street, in said City, that he is held and detained by MATTHEW T. BRENNAN Esq., Sheriff of the County of New-York, since the 20th day of November, 1871; that your petitioner further shows that, according to the best of your petitioner's knowledge and belief, the causes or pretenses of his said imprisonment are as follows: That your petitioner was arrested on Saturday, the 25th day of November, 1871, on a warrant issued by the people of the State of New-York against your petitioner, for deceit and fraud, in relation to certain claims presented by your petitioner as Controller of the City of New-York; that under the provisions of the sixty-ninth section of the Code of Procedure; that your petitioner was so arrested, by said Sheriff of the County of New-York, under and by virtues of an order of arrest issued to him by the Hon. WILLIAM F. LEARNED, one of the justices of the Supreme Court of this State; that in and by said order the said Sheriff was ordered and required forthwith to arrest your petitioner and hold him to bail in the sum of $1,000,000; that a copy of said order of arrest is hereunto annexed marked No. 1; that your petitioner has not yet given bail to said Sheriff as required by said order; that for four days after his arrest your petitioner remained under the custody and charge of said Sheriff, and on the 29th day of November, 1871, was arraigned before the Court of said County of New-York, and has since remained in close imprisonment, under said order of arrest. And your petitioner further shows, that, as he is informed and believes, two indictments have been found against him by the Grand Jury of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, held in and for the County of New-York, on the 15th day of December, 1871; that said indictments were for the offenses charged against him in each of said indictments charged your petitioner with willfully, unlawfully, and corruptly neglecting as the Controller of said City, to audit certain claims against the Corporation of New-York; that on the said 15th day of December, 1871, bench-warrants were issued on said indictments, by SAMUEL B. GARVIN, Esq., District-Attorney of the County of New-York, commanding the said Sheriff of the City of New-York to arrest your petitioner; that the said Sheriff has the said warrants in his possession or under his control, and are held by him as authority for the detention of your petitioner in Ludlow-street, and that copies of said warrants are hereunto annexed, marked Nos. 1 and 2; that as your petitioner is informed and believes, on the 15th day of December, 1871, thirteen additional indictments were found against your petitioner by the same Grand Jury of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, held in and for the City and County of New-York; that said indictments were also for the offenses; said thirteen indictments also charged your petitioner with willfully, unlawfully and corruptly neglecting to audit thirteen alleged claims against the County of New-York; that, on the 29th day of November, 1871, bench-warrants were issued on said thirteen indictments, by SAMUEL B. GARVIN, Esq., District-Attorney of the County of New-York, commanding the said Sheriff of the City of New-York to arrest your petitioner; that said Sheriff has the said warrants in his possession and under his control, and the same are held by him as authority for the detention by him of your petitioner in said Ludlow-street; that copies of said warrants, issued on the 15th day of December, 1871, are also hereunto annexed, marked 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 inclusive; that your petitioner has not been called upon to plead to said indictments, and he is not guilty of the charge alleged against him in said indictments, or either of them. And your petitioner further shows that he has not been arraigned and brought before any Magistrate or Police Justice to answer the supposed criminal charge in said indictments; that he has had no examination, nor have the matters of such indictments been heard before any competent magistrate; that he has never been confronted with any witnesses against him; and that he has been constantly in the City of New-York during the months of November and December past; that the Grand Jury, by which the said indictments were found, were summoned for the November Term of said Court of General Sessions, and said Grand Jury has been continued, by adjournment, through the months of November and December Terms of said Court; and was again, on the 6th day of December, 1871, continued, by order of said court, until the 27th day of January, 1872. And your petitioner further shows that he is not committed or detained by virtue of any process issued by any Court of the United States; that he is not committed or detained by virtue of the final judgment or decree of any competent tribunal of civil or criminal jurisdiction, or by virtue of any execution issued upon such judgment or decree; that the imprisonment of your petitioner under the Bench-warrants issued by the District-Attorney of the County of New-York, and on indictments found in said County of New-York, and in the Court of General Sessions, in which said indictments were found, had no jurisdiction or authority to find said indictments. Therefore your petitioner prays a writ of habeas corpus, to the end that he may be discharged from custody, or bailed, on the supposed criminal matters set forth in said bench-warrants issued on the said several indictments found against your petitioner, on behalf and intended for the [illegible]. (Signed) RICHARD B. CONNOLLY.

SAMUEL G. COURTNEY, Attorney for Petitioner.

CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW-YORK, ss.: RICHARD B. CONNOLLY, the above-named petitioner, being duly sworn, says that the facts set forth in the above petition, by him subscribed, are true.

RICHARD B. CONNOLLY.

Sworn to before me this 1st day of January, 1872.
DANIEL A. MURPHY, Notary Public,
New-York County.

To this petition was annexed the order Judge LEARNED, reducing the bail of Mr. CONNOLLY in the civil suit from $1,000,000 to $500,000. The proceedings were opened by District-Attorney GARVIN reading the return of Sheriff BRENNAN to the writ, in which return the latter set forth that he held the petitioner, CONNOLLY, under fifteen bench-warrants issued by Judge BARNARD, charging in each case the commission of a misdemeanor. He then read to the Court as his first point in opposition, Section 27, of Second Revised Statutes, page 738, which provides that after the Court of Oyer and Terminer shall have commenced its session in any county, no prisoner detained in the common jail of such county upon a criminal charge shall be removed therefrom by any writ of habeas corpus, unless such writ shall have been issued by such Court of Oyer and Terminer, or shall be returnable before it. In support of this provision of the statute, as governing the present case, the following affidavit of District-Attorney SULLIVAN was read:

CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW-YORK, ss.: ALGERNON S. SULLIVAN, being duly sworn, says that the Court of Oyer and Terminer for the County of New-York commenced its session some weeks ago, and has not yet finally adjourned, but will be probably at 12 o'clock to-morrow morning, and further saith not.

Sworn and subscribed this 1st day of January, 1872, before me. ALGERNON S. SULLIVAN.

RICHARD C. BARRETT, Notary Public, New-York.

District-Attorney GARVIN then presented as his second point that he had received but twenty minutes' notice of the application, and that it was a mere accident that he was to be found at all at his office, not anticipating this or any other business in connection with his position as prosecuting attorney on the 1st of January. In the third place, the day was an unusual one, no Court being in session, and no Court ordinarily being in session, or judge attached, to sit as a bear office on writs of habeas corpus.

Relying on these points Judge GARVIN contended earnestly that the subject of the controversy were such as should define the petitioner, should be [illegible] to be discharged, the manner of the application to be dismissed, the matter dictated on such a day and on such brief notice to the public prosecutor; and that, in any event, the affidavit of Mr. SULLIVAN showed that the Court of Oyer and Terminer was holding a term, and would be in actual session to-morrow (this morning), thus bringing the case within the clear meaning of the statutes taking away jurisdiction from any other Court or Judge.

Judge BARNARD here stated that he himself had opened the Court of Oyer and Terminer on Friday and adjourned it until today.

To this Mr. SULLIVAN replied that if he were knowledge Judge BRADLEY, who is holding the Court of Oyer and Terminer, adjourned it on Thursday last until Tuesday, the 2d, and as he his Honor having opened it on Friday and adjourned to an earlier day, he could only plead profound ignorance.

Mr. JOHN MCKEON, who appeared on behalf of Mr. CONNOLLY, then addressed the Court briefly, contending that it was something unheard of to oppose bail in a case of misdemeanor; that by universal custom grown up in the system of criminal jurisprudence in this country it was a right to which as a citizen, his client laid claim, and that it could not be legally or justly opposed, except through that spirit of Communism which now seems to be abroad in this community.

Judge BARNARD cut Mr. MCKEON short by telling him that further argument on the question was superfluous; he had come to the conclusion that his client was right, and it was his duty to accept bail in the case, and he would do so. His would, he said, fix the amount of bail at $1,000 on each charge, making $15,000 in all, which he would order to be accepted.

Surrogate HUTCHINGS, the son-in-law of Mr. CONNOLLY, who was already in Court, was then offered as security, the bond was then prepared, he a single bond in all the cases. HUTCHINGS swore he was worth double the amount, $30,000, both principal and surety acknowledged it, Judge BARNARD approved it, the whole proceeding was at an end, RICHARD B. CONNOLLY and his friends departed quickly via New-York's call at his home, and the Special New-York's Commission of the Supreme Court had finished its judicial mission.

Connolly Gives Bail in the Civil Suit—His Release from Ludlow-Street Jail.

People coming down-town yesterday morning were somewhat surprised to learn that Ex-Controller CONNOLLY had been released from jail on the civil suit, and also from detention upon the criminal charges against him, after giving bail in both cases. The news of the proceedings in Court was the subject of much gossip among politicians and New-Year callers, and created considerable comment. His bondsmen in the civil suit are: GEORGE HOFFMAN, $100,000; Mrs. ELIZABETH CONNOLLY, $80,000; Mr. JOHN FITHIAN, $100,000; CHARLES M. CONNOLLY, $80,000; JAMES P. CONNOLLY, Stocking; WASHINGTON CONNOLLY, $80,000; THOMAS CONNOLLY, $80,000.

Yesterday the sureties were submitted to Sheriff BRENNAN, and that officer at once accepted them. This part of the preliminary work for Commissioner's release being disposed of, his friends were satisfied to wait patiently till today to obtain his release from the fifteen detainers lodged with Warden EGAN on the indictments for misdemeanors found against him by the Grand Jury. Sheriff BRENNAN suggested that as the prisoner's actual strength is probable that they could obtain the release upon the criminal charges, it might be worth while for them to make the attempt, after which application it was determined to do so. The result of the effort was that Judge BARNARD, who had answered so well in the Tweed difficulty, was found, and the Sheriff released the prisoner from the civil action, was then informed served with a writ of habeas corpus commanding him to bring his prisoner, now detained by him on the criminal charges, before Judge BARNARD, who, as detailed elsewhere, discharged him on $15,000, bail for which Surrogate R. C. HUTCHINGS has become surety. Mr. JOHN GRAVES, under-Sheriff, proceeded immediately to the Jail in Ludlow-street, with Warden EGAN, the building with the prisoner, CONNOLLY, at 12:10 P. M. precisely. Mrs. CONNOLLY, Mrs. HUTCHINGS, and Mrs. FITHIAN, who had been with him during the day, waited at the jail for tidings of the result of his appearance in Court. When the news came down that he had been released and was on his way home, their joy was unbounded.

Mr. CONNOLLY drove immediately to his home after the proceedings in Court, and was soon afterward joined by his family. He received no formal New-Year's calling, but was visited by a number of his intimate friends, who, upon hearing of his release, crowded to his house to pour out their congratulations.

The Paterson Poisoning Case—The Mystery Still Unravelled—The Inquest to be Continued Today.

The inquest upon the body of RAMSON F. BURROUGHS, whose lifeless body was found in his house in Paterson by Constable MOSES, on Wednesday last, will be resumed before Coroner QUIN, in Paterson, this afternoon. Thus far the testimony, although susceptible of interpretation in accordance with the suicide theory, has been such as to cause a general belief that BURROUGHS' death was the result of a cold-blooded conspiracy between two women who were his companions. The story told thus far by the witnesses before the Coroner's jury is as follows:

On Wednesday, Constable MOSES, having a writ of attachment to serve upon BURROUGHS, visited the den occupied by the latter, in one of the lowest quarters of Paterson. The constable went through the saloon, where EDWARD TAYLOR had a short time before been murdered, and passed on up stairs, finding no one in the lower rooms. He called for BURROUGHS, but received no answer. Finally he forced open the door of BURROUGHS' bedroom. When he found the saloon-keeper sitting up in a chair, with a counterpane wrapped around him. The constable slapped him on the shoulder and looked into his face, but the figure was lifeless. MOSES left the house in great alarm, and gave information. Dr. QUIN, the Coroner, came and viewed the body, which was frozen stiff, and from which life had been evidently several days extinct. It was supposed that BURROUGHS had committed suicide on account of his troubles, which were many. His wife, arrested a few months before, for keeping a disorderly house, was an inmate of the State Prison, and the witnesses of his life had greatly fallen off since the murder of TAYLOR, and it had been, in fact, shunned by all its former customers. Beside there was a note in a drawer of the table signed by him, in which it was stated that he had taken his own life. A laudanum bottle, one that had contained arsenic and other evidences of deliberate suicide, were in the room. But Coroner QUIN found some suspicious circumstances which induced him to make further investigation. BURROUGHS was entirely unable to write, and yet a note was found in which he stated his intention of committing the suicide. Suspicion immediately rested on Lizzie GARRABRANT, BURROUGHS' mistress, and upon her arrest she acknowledged having written the note, saying it was done at his dictation. The fact that she had written the note, the leaving to her by the note of a costly set of furniture which she had long coveted, the possession of his watch, chain and purse, and the fact developed at the inquest that she had purchased quite a fortune during the past month, all tended to implicate the girl. She denies all knowledge of his death, and yet slept in the house every night, and was the only person who had the means of ingress. She also had in her possession the key to the room in which the body was found, and the door of which was locked. In addition to all this, a lad, who kept bee company, testified that she had taken him into BURROUGHS' room while she brushed her hair. Deceased was lying in the same position as when found by Constable MOSES, and Lizzie GARRABRANT told him that he was asleep, and had been so for two days. Other circumstances equally criminating have been adduced, which lead to the belief that this is one of the most cold-blooded, premeditated murders ever committed. Of course, there can be no doubt that BURROUGHS was poisoned, and much stress the opinion of the physicians who made the post-mortem examination, that a fatal dose of the stomach and intestines have been placed in the hands of Prof. BOERNER, of New-York, who will make a chemical analysis. The facts developed in this case have thrown suspicion upon the girl.

OUR STATE INSTITUTIONS.—XIV.

The Albany Iron Foundries.

ALBANY, Friday, Dec. 29, 1871.

Albany is the seat of a manufacturing, that is a trading city. With the one marked exception of lumber, her jobbing trade is comparatively small. It does not rival that of many much smaller and less important cities, and does not increase in anything like the same ratio, even if it increases at all. This, I am told by some of the leading citizens, is solely the result of the great facilities for travel and freight transportation between the city and New-York. Retailers prefer to purchase their stocks in New-York, where they have a market and selection which is impossible at home. They can run down to New-York, get through all their business, and be home again in four and twenty hours; while in the case of more distant cities, from which must a trip would occupy three days, the jobber has a chance, which he has not in Albany, of competing with the wholesale houses of New-York. But this rapid and easy communication with New-York, while damaging to the jobbing trade of Albany, is very valuable and fostering to her manufacturing interests, and, in conjunction with unusual transportation facilities in other directions, gives her a commanding position from which to ship her products to every Western shipping district in the Union. Albany, moreover, has advantages for manufacturing which New-York has not. Rents are comparatively low; labor is abundant, and wages about twenty-five per cent. lower than in New-York. Still, considering the lower rents, and the fact that meat and all kinds of produce are twenty-five to thirty per cent. cheaper in Albany than in New-York, labor is equally well paid. There is plenty of capital, and it is freely lent by private individuals, or by the banks, to respectable and responsible persons. Albany, therefore, wisely takes her pitcher to the well from which the water is easiest to draw, and throws herself, heart and soul, into her manufacturing business, and weaves by stoves, hollow-ware, nails, boxes, and boots and shoes.

Stoves are the pièce de resistance of Albany manufacture. The proprietors of the foundries have a splendid business, and, by sending out traveling agents in all directions, compete successfully with the Western foundries of Cincinnati, St. Louis, and other cities. Thus Albany stoves cook the dinners and boil the tea-kettles of the lumberers in Maine, the settlers in Texas, and the pioneers on the extreme North-western frontier. I had some conversation with Gen. RATHBONE, the senior partner in, perhaps, the largest stove firm, as to the merits of this "traveling" system for manufacturers. He does not like it, but says that they have been compelled to adopt it to keep up with the times. He considers it an unwise reversal of the ordinary usages of trade for the manufacturer to go in search of orders; that he ought to receive them by mail or from the buyers, in person, at his store. The system, too, entails a very heavy expenditure, which of course falls on the eventual purchaser. Travelers receive from $1,500 to $3,000 a year, according to their connections and business capabilities, and Gen. RATHBONE says that they consider a traveler very economical if he only spends $5 a day for expenses. A good traveler generally costs, altogether, about $5,000 a year; and that sum must be added to the price of the stoves he sells.

Prior to 1828 stoves were only used to a limited extent, the manufacture in this country being mainly confined to the heavy and awkward-looking "Horse-block" cooking-stoves, and "Tin-plate" heating stoves. They were manufactured direct from the ore in the blast furnaces of New-Jersey and Pennsylvania. In 1828 Mr. JOHN RATHBONE, of Albany, who was dealing in these stoves at the time, conceived the idea of manufacturing improved stoves, of lighter patterns, from pig-iron in foundries at Albany. He contracted for this work with MANY & WARD, of the Eagle Air Furnace, and the predecessors of the present great stove firm of PERRY & Co. Mr. RATHBONE was eminently prosperous in his undertaking, and accumulated a large fortune. He died several years ago, leaving his business to two nephews, JOHN F. RATHBONE and SAMUEL H. RENSSELAER. They, however, separated some years after, and formed the respective firms of JOHN F. RATHBONE & Co., and SAMUEL H. RENSSELAER & Co., who, with PERRY & Co., are now the leading firms in the manufacture of stoves. Thus was laid the foundation of one of the most important manufacturing interests in the country. Albany soon became the centre of this branch of industry, and from it have radiated large and prosperous establishments at Troy, Boston, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, St. Louis, and elsewhere. It is probable that in 1830 not more than 1,000 tons of stoves were manufactured and sold at Albany. There are now fourteen foundries, the product of which is estimated at 60,000 tons, representing an annual business of $5,000,000. They give employment to 1,500 men, thus affording support to about 8,000 of the population of the city. The proprietors of the foundries are always in search of new patterns and improvements. Probably $100,000 a year are expended in the construction of new patterns; while the improvements which have been made from time to time during the last forty years are in keeping with the progress of other leading manufactures.

It was in Albany that the application to stoves of the principle of "base-burning" had its real beginning; for though Dr. NOTT and others made some attempts in that direction, they were soon abandoned. As early as 1833, TREADWELL & PERRY, the immediate predecessors of PERRY & Co., adapted this principle to their stoves under the Littlefield patent. Since that time they and their successors have made it a specialty, and for some years mainly controlled this branch of stove manufacture, though many years elapsed before the public were prepared to discard their old, time-honored "surface-burning" stoves and furnaces and to adopt the "perpetual heaters." But in 1848 Mr. JOHN S. PERRY brought out improved patterns of stoves of this description, and from that time the business increased. The firm have probably sold from 70,000 to 80,000 of their Oriental Base-burners. They also manufacture on a large scale the Oriental base-burning warm-air furnaces, which have found great favor with the public. They are now carrying this admirable principle into cooking stoves, which only require replenishing with coal once in four and twenty hours. The ovens are always hot and ready for use, day and night. The fire once lighted will keep alight for an indefinite time—for a year, or five or ten years. Altogether, PERRY & Co. do a business of $700,000 a year.

JOHN F. RATHBONE & Co. manufacture about $800,000 worth of stoves and hollow-ware, (pots and pans.) The leading specialties of their business are the "Fearless" cooking stoves, base-burning furnaces, and the base-burning parlor stove known as the "Brilliant." The firm has two large foundries on North Ferry-street, and a capacious store on Greene-street. SAMUEL H. RENSSELAER & Co., of Broadway, have a business of about $700,000 a year. They make a specialty of the "Modern Prince" cooking stove, and the "Light House" base-burner. HAYNER & Co., and RANSOM & Co., both have branch stores in Chicago, from which place they send their stoves to all parts of the great West. PERRY & Co. have a branch house in New-York. S. MCCOY, one of the oldest stove dealers in Albany, makes the "Buck" cooking stove the leading feature of his business; VAN WORMER & MCGARVEY manufacture the "American" base-burner; BACKUS, BUTLER & Co. the "Challenge" base-burner; the Treadwell Stove Company the "Illuminator" base-burner; the Littlefield Stove Company the "Morning Glory" base-burner. The firm of SWAN, PADELFORD & Co., an old and respectable firm, sold out their business to PERRY & Co. two years ago, conveying to them the right to manufacture and sell the "American" cooking stove, of which pattern about 60,000 have been sold since 1860.

I visited some of the stove foundries and stores, and of all the disappointing places to find yourself in on a Winter's day, I think a wholesale stove warehouse is the worst. I passed an hour one morning at Gen. RATHBONE'S store. There was a perfect mass of all descriptions; parlor stoves, bedroom stoves, cooking stoves, furnace heaters, base-burners, and surface burners without number, but not a glow of heat radiated from any one of them. It was the old story: Water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink! The stoves looked terribly cold. The sight of them was chilling, and, no doubt, the vast mass of cold iron did lower the temperature of the building. As I contemplated the endless rows of unsympathizing stoves in Mr. PERRY'S great store, I could not help expressing my wonder to that gentleman as to what becomes of all the stoves which are annually manufactured.

"You see," he replied, "a cooking stove is an indispensable necessity in every household, and to three-quarters of our population a heating stove is equally so. Now, taking the population of the United States at 35,000,000, and allowing five persons to each family, there would be 7,000,000 families. A stove, on an average, only lasts about five years, and if every family bought a stove (which they must necessarily do) once in five years, the foundries of the country must turn out 1,400,000 stoves every year in order to keep the supply up to the demand. But many families have from one up to half a dozen stoves in their houses. In addition to our domestic trade there is more or less export demand for Canada, the West Indies, South America, Mexico and even from more distant countries. Now, Sir, you see what an extensive and almost apparently insatiable market we have to supply. You don't wonder now where all the stoves go to, do you?"

The process of moulding and casting stoves is one of great delicacy, and very interesting to watch. I spent some hours in the Rathbone foundries studying the various operations, and, as a description of the modus operandi of one is a description of that of all, the only difference being in the amount of work done, I shall confine myself to those particular works. The two foundries are separated by the street, but the furnaces are all blasted from the same blowers by means of a large connecting tube running across the street. In the foundry nearer the river there is one cupola which blasts twenty-two tons of material a day, with engines and blowers, a molding floor, moulding and finishing rooms and stores. The other foundry has two cupolas, one blasting twenty-two tons and the other fifteen tons a day, and two molding rooms, one for each cupola. The three cupolas are blasted by two powerful blowers of 200 pounds capacity, and melt when in full blast thirty-five to forty-five tons a day throughout the working year of ten months. Molding goes on all day till 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when casting begins and continues up till 5 o'clock. The molding-room is the busiest of scenes. As the molders work out their patterns, they are as grave and careful as BENVENUTO CELLINI manipulating some elegant and costly piece of workmanship in gold or silver, for his Papal or Imperial patrons. The floor of the molding-room is covered with fine, damp sand for making the molds. This is of a peculiar kind, and is fortunately found in large quantities on a farm a short distance from the city. River sand is not only unsuitable, but utterly useless for the purpose on account of its excessive rottenness.

Every part of the stove, often a hundred of them, is molded separately. Every molder has a particular part of a stove pattern alloted to him to work out, and he makes just so many of them as the number of stoves ordered. On a flat board he places a strong, square frame-work of wood called a flask. It is about eighteen inches high, and like a box without top or bottom, the lid of which opens in the middle instead of near the top. He throws in a lot of the sand lying around, and places the pattern on the top. If the design is very intricate, the pattern is made in pieces, which can be held together by bolts. As soon as his pattern is arranged to his satisfaction, he begins to pile the sand on the top of it, all the while ramming and pushing and stamping it into every little nook and cranny of the pattern, till the whole appears to be one solid mass; and so tightly is the sand rammed in that when the molder turns the upper part of the flask back on its hinges, not a particle of it drops away. But before doing so, he punctures the sand with a number of little air holes, to allow the steam to escape when the casting is made, and one large wedged shaped hole through which to pour the molten metal. These holes, of course, leave pieces of rough iron attached to the casting, but they are easily knocked off with a hammer, and all traces of them are removed in the finishing-shop. When the lid of the flask is turned back, the top of the pattern is seen, perfect in detail but reversed. The molder then carefully draws out the wooden original, handling it as tenderly as a nurse does a three weeks' old baby, and there is the other side of the pattern. Both sides are then sprinkled with a fine, dry, black powder, composed largely of charcoal. This he lightly brushes off, leaving just enough adhering to the sand to prevent any part of the mould from sticking to the casting. The lid is then turned gently back into its place, and all is ready for the operation of casting.

In the meantime, Col. YOUNG, the superintendent of the works, has been busy attending to the proper mixture of the materials in the cupola for the day's run—coal, two or three varieties of pig-iron, and a certain proportion of scrap-iron—the furnace has been lighted, and the huge blowers are fast blasting the materials into a red-hot mass. The foreman judges whether the seething metal is ready or not for use by its color. It is possible to make it too hot, which causes it to spit and splutter, instead of seething. This always produces faulty castings. It is therefore necessary to use the metal just at the right moment. The foreman can see directly when the iron is too hot, by its extreme whiteness. When he gives the word that all is ready, fifteen or twenty grimy-faced men appear on the cupola, each carrying a large iron ladle lined with burnt clay; the vent through which the fluid metal flows is opened, and a small stream of liquid fire gushes out, of the fearfully liquid that one can hardly believe it to be iron. As fast as one fills his ladle and hurries away to the molds, another takes his place, returning again and again, till all the molds have been filled. As they pass quickly up and down, and between the molds, half hidden at times by the steaming vapor, then suddenly appearing to full view with their ladles, the reflection from the yellow metal lights them up till they look all ablaze. Sometimes a mold will explode from an insufficient escape for the steam, generated by the molten iron coming suddenly in contact with the damp sand. In such cases it is very necessary for the men to preserve their presence of mind, as where so many are moving rapidly about, ladles in hand, they might be sure to injure one another severely if they sprang aside. The sand flies in all directions, but the casting is seldom injured. In fact, as a general thing, it is an unusually good casting, showing that the sand must have been lightly and well packed. Explosions, however, are not sought for. Far from it. The heat radiating from the ladles is very great. At the time I visited the works an old-fashioned Albany snap was blowing, and yet the men perspired as though they were in a Turkish bath. Half an hour after the castings are made, men go round and break up the molds and take out the casts. In an hour they are cold and ready for the finisher and mounter. Should there be a surplus of metal in the cupola after all the molds have been filled, it is poured into plain square molds, to be used again the next day.

It seems somewhat strange that in a city like Albany, with foundries consuming annually 70,000 or 80,000 tons of pig-iron, there should not have been till three months ago a single blast furnace for supplying the foundries. With the exception of coal, New-York State possesses in herself mineral resources of such magnitude that it would appear that the manufacture of pig-iron must become her chief and greatest branch of industry, even going ahead of Pennsylvania. But with regard to coal, the competing sales of the great companies at their depots on the Hudson place Albany almost on an equality with those nearer the coal regions for a cheap supply. This great want in her manufacturing interests has at last been partially provided for, and Albany will no longer be dependent for her main supplies, as she has been for so many years, on the blast furnaces in the interior of Pennsylvania. In the Spring of 1870 the Corning Iron Company, of which some of the most prominent citizens form the Board of Trustees, was organized with a capital of $350,000, for the purpose of erecting a blast furnace. The works, which were completed three months since, are located on an island just below the southern boundary of the city, with which they are connected by bridges. They are built almost entirely of brick and iron, and have a substantial and imposing look. Mr. BACKUS, the Company's engineer and superintendent, furnished the designs and supervised the construction. Owing to the freshets which annually take place in the Hudson River, often occasioning a rise of ten or fifteen feet, much filling in and flooding had to be done, if being desirable to locate the works as near as possible to the channel. The foundations, which are very massive and extensive, 75,000 cubic feet of stone having been used in laying them, were carried up from the subsoil beneath the filling, so as to place the works beyond all danger. By means of a small branch railroad, constructed by the Company, the works have communication with all the roads diverging from Albany, including direct access to the ore and coal regions, Winter and Summer.

The works are built in the shape of a Greek cross and have a river frontage of 250 feet, and an east and west depth of 225 feet. They consist of two cupola furnaces, 24 feet outside diameter and 61 feet high; their casting-houses are each 50 by 100 feet; a stock house, 70 by 75 feet, in which the materials charged into the furnaces are weighed and prepared before being carried by two steam elevators to the charging floor. These elevators are continually running, and carry daily 100 tons of coal and 300 tons of iron ore and limestone. In the rear of the furnaces is the engine-house, a large and massive building, containing two beam-blowing engines, with steam cylinders of 38 inches and blowing cylinders of 84 inches diameter and eight feet stroke. The engines weigh 350 tons each, and are capable of exercising 700 horse power. In this building are also two large steam-pumps for supplying water, of which a great quantity is used in keeping the furnaces cool outwardly. The boilers for generating steam, twenty in number, and holding 150 tons of water, are placed above the engines.

And here come into operation some novel and interesting features in the successful and economical manufacture of pig-iron. No fuel or manual labor whatever is used in generating steam in these boilers. All the waste gases from the smelting operation in the furnaces are conducted in flues beneath the boilers, and there burned by the proper admixture of air, creating a uniform and intense heat. The air blast, which leaves the engines cold at the rate of 8,000 cubic feet a minute for each furnace, is conducted through six hot blast stoves in which it is made to pass through a system of iron pipes presenting a heating surface of 10,000 square feet and kept at a red heat by the consumption of the waste gases from the furnaces in the same way as the boilers are heated. By this means the air blast, instead of rushing cold into the furnaces and chilling the melting ore, passes in heated to a temperature of 1,000 degrees and at a pressure of six pounds to the inch. So complete is the management and systematic use of the waste gases that, although the furnaces are open at the top, no heat or flame is visible. It is a marvelous sight to open one of the little peep-holes and look into these chambers of flaming gas. They are sixteen feet square and forty feet high, filled in every part by one mass of rushing fire. It gives one a fair conception of what Shadrack, Meshach, and Abed-nego must have experienced after Nebuchadnezzar had had the furnace seven times heated for their especial benefit. The consumption of the works is at the rate of 35,000 tons of coal, 50,000 tons of iron-ore, and 15,000 tons of limestone per annum. The production of the works, as they are now running, will be 25,000 tons of pig-iron; according to present market values about $900,000 worth. The quality of iron made is No. 1 Foundry. Gen. RATHBONE showed me some samples of iron made at the works. They had just been sent in for his consideration. He placed them side by side with samples of No. 1 iron from Pennsylvania and other places, such as he has been in the habit of buying. The superiority of the Corning Company's iron was manifest at a glance. The General seemed it warmly, and said: "I will take all they will let me have of such iron as that. It is the finest I ever saw." If the Company keep up their standard, their success is assured, for their prices are moderate. One or two more such furnaces will supply the Albany foundries with all the iron they need, and then the iron interest of the city will be complete and complete, and still more redound to the credit and contribute to the prosperity of the citizens of the State Capital. OBITUARY.

Abram Heaton.

The death of Mr. ABRAM HEATON, a well-known and respectable citizen of New-Haven, is announced, the event being anticipated for some days.

Mr. HEATON was between ninety-five and ninety-six years of age, and probably the oldest man in New-Haven. He was born only six days after the Declaration of Independence, and his life has, therefore, been identical with that of his country. He was a child with it, and has lived through all of its changes and seen all the processes. He was born in Plymouth, and went to New-Haven when about twenty-one years of age, in 1796, with little capital and opened a store in what was then the business part of New-Haven at the head, or just out, Long Wharf. He devoted himself most untiringly to business from the time that he began until he was obliged by his age to and retire from active life. His little stock in trade he bore to his store on a wheelbarrow, and made a point of buying a small stock, selling frequently and renewing. His business even in those days grew rapidly, and he was far-sighted enough to advance it on the city grant. For many years he kept a store near the head of the wharf, and by rigid economy and faithful attention to his business grew prosperous. The trying times through which he passed did not cause him to deviate from economy. He prospered all the elements of a successful business and met them, and saw a commercial career. Notwithstanding the fact that years ago he amassed wealth, he continued to work without day, giving to pay a personal attention to his business, going to his office every day.

Mr. HEATON'S great age did not impair any of his faculties except till night. His mind was perfectly clear, his memory excellent, and he recalled almost all years' events. He was a man of great regularity in his habits, and performed his long life day have been owing to that fact. But it was as a benevolent and public-minded citizen that Mr. HEATON was best known to New-Haven people. His name will always be associated with the New-Haven Orphan Asylum, which institution was founded and did much during its early support. There are many prominent young men and women today in respected positions who owe their place to Mr. HEATON'S kindness. The Orphan Asylum will remain the best monument to Mr. HEATON'S memory, and long his name will be in the communities of New-Haven. Mr. HEATON'S private charities were very large, and were and nothing of a very found in him a deep sympathizer. Mr. HEATON never took an active part in politics, though he was always deeply interested in political matters.

John Tarr.

There died in Mantville, Penn., a few days since, a man in whose life there is more than one of those who, few years ago, suddenly found themselves possessors of immense wealth, by the discovery of petroleum on territory which a life-time of delving and tilling had failed to more than return a living to his owners. The man referred to was JOHN TARR, proprietor of the Tarr Farm, which became famous in 1861 from the rich oil-wells discovered upon it. Before the oil excitement had filled that section of country with eager speculators, JOHN TARR'S earthly possessions could have been purchased for the munificent sum of $1,000. But one day in June, 1861, long and patient boring was responded to by the gushing up of the oleaginous treasure from several "heavy" wells, and then the rocky and hilly acres of the old man sound scarcely be bought by covering them with money. One-half interest in the oil Mr. TARR at once succeeded in selling to Messrs. CLARK & SUMNER, of New-York, for $50,000, which firm offered him a like sum for the entire royalty, which he was mentally calculating, when he sold a third of their purchase to a party of Rochester capitalists for $35,000, and bought it back at the same price, the purchasers regretting their bargain, as oil declined in price soon after it was made. Well after well was developed on Mr. TARR'S farm, and in all, he was offered $1,000,000 cash for the fee simple of his farm, which he also refused. Up to 1866, the Midland Railroad FIRST MORTGAGE 7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds, LIMITED TO $30,000 PER MILE ON FINISHED ROAD.

The rapid progress toward completion of this great Trunk Line from New-York to the West and to Canada, enables us to offer to investors at PAR AND INTEREST a further limited issue of these favorite securities.

Upward of 340 miles of this road, including the New-Jersey section, are already finished, equipped, and in operation; and contracts with responsible parties have been made for its entire completion by the first day of July next. When this shall have been accomplished its earnings cannot fail to be large and highly remunerative, as it has advantages at least equal to those of any of its competitors for both local and through business. It is selling for cash, of which nearly $2,000,000 have been furnished by subscription to its stock at PAR. The works are substantial, and, including equipment, has not exceeded in cost $50,000 per mile, which is less than one-third of the amount at which some of the trunk lines of roads leading from New-York are capitalized, and on which they are paying good dividends.

In view of these facts, the Midland First Mortgage Bonds must be regarded as a first-class security—quite as safe as Governments; and, by making the exchange at the present difference in price, holders of Midland Bonds will receive 20 per cent. more of revenue upon the amount invested than the holders of Government Bonds.

For sale or exchange for Governments at their market price, by GEORGE OPDYKE & CO., No. 25 Nassau-st.

REAL ESTATE MORTGAGE BONDS OF THE ASSOCIATION KNOWN AS THE "Masonic Hall & Asylum Fund" OF THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

Entire Amount of Bonds, $400,000, secured by Real Estate in the City of New-York worth $1,000,000.

The "Masonic Hall and Asylum Fund" is an association incorporated by the State of New-York. The bonds are secured by a first and only mortgage on the valuable plot of land, situated on the northeast corner of 6th-av. and West 23d-st., in the City of New-York, and the new Masonic Hall building now in course of erection on the same. The land alone cost $500,000, and the cost of both land and building will amount to $1,000,000.

The principal of the bonds is to be payable Sept. 15, 1887, and the interest is at the rate of seven per cent. gold, payable on the 15th of March and the 15th of September. The property of the Association, which belongs to the whole Masonic fraternity of the State, consists of more than 77,000 members, capable of the highest order.

By virtue of the act of the Legislature, the five officers of the Association are the Trustees of this Association, while for the purpose of this loan the Union Trust Company of the City of New-York is made the Trustee of the property, to hold it to secure the payment of the principal and interest of the Bonds.

In addition to the rents to be derived from the building, which are pledged for the payment of the bonds, the Board is in the regular annual receipt of an income of about $60,000 from the subordinate lodges, making a total of $80,000, of which sum the Board will be devoted to the payment of interest on the bonds, and a large portion of the balance on the building, and the residue, amounting to $25,000 per annum, will be appropriated to the gradual extinction of the bonds.

For absolute safety, these bonds offer an unexcelled investment for all trust funds or other funds equal to any security in the country.

WINSLOW, LANIER & CO., BANKERS, NO. 7 PINE-ST., NEW-YORK, OFFER FOR SALE any part of $1,000,000 ILLINOIS AND INDIANA RAILROAD COMPANY'S FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, bearing seven per cent. interest, payable in GOLD, free of Government tax, being the balance of an issue of $3,000,000 of the First Mortgage Bonds, which are also secured by a LAND GRANT of 1,120,000 acres of choice fine timber land, the proceeds of the sales of lands are applied to the payment of the bonds. Hon. W. A. Richardson, late Commissioner of the Land Office, Dec. 12, that the land sales to that date amount to about $3,000,000, and at an average of $10 per acre. He estimates the proceeds of the entire grant thereof, at $20,000,000. The road, now finished, two hundred and twenty (220) miles of the railroad are now completed, and earning sufficient money to pay the interest on the whole issue of bonds. Price, sixty and accrued interest. We recommend these bonds to investors as a perfectly safe and desirable security.

$140,000,000 U. S. 5-20 BONDS Have been called in, and are now being paid.

Our Government is rapidly retiring the National debt by purchase and redemption, thereby assuring us that all the 5-20s will soon be taken up by purchase or in exchange for Bonds at Four and Five per Cent. interest.

Investors are looking for safe and suitable securities returning a good income to take their place.

Many holders are converting them, through us into the

PEORIA & ROCK ISLAND First Mortgage 7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds, thereby adding 20 to 25 PER CENT. TO THEIR CAPITAL, and about 45 PER CENT. to their YEARLY INCOME.

We commend these bonds strongly, for the following reasons:

The Road, ninety-one miles in length, is already COMPLETED, and earning much more than the interest on the whole issue of bonds.

The mortgage, $1,500,000, is less than $16,500 per mile.

The road passes through a rich, populous agricultural, manufacturing, and coal district.

It connects Peoria and Rock Island, two of the largest and most flourishing cities in Illinois, and forms part of a trunk line from Indianapolis to St. Paul—470 miles. It also connects two navigable rivers—the Illinois and Mississippi. The bonds are authorized for the extra equipments and necessary buildings required to do the business now offered.

They are coupon bonds, $1,000 each, and can be registered if desired.

They are coupon bonds, $1,000 each, and can be registered if desired.

They are exempt from all taxes, gold, free of tax, payable February and August.

Price, 90 and interest, in currency.

NEW-YEAR'S DAY.

The Usual Observances in This City and Elsewhere.

Annual Interchange of Courtesies Among Our Citizens.

The Streets Filled with Carriages and Pedestrians—Different Methods of Passing the Day Among People of Rights and Nationalities.

The first of January, 1872, has come and gone, and to the ever onward pressing American mind as just as much an event of the past as the year 1871. Our people know nothing of the sentimental rejoicings of the old Romans and Britons. With them the new year is a welcome opportunity for an exchange of social courtesies. They turn from the old to the new year necessarily as the last visual objects a clean glass for the fresh bottle of his dearly loved Chateaubriand, and discard the past with as little regret as young and gushing beauty lays aside the bonnet which has so well brought out the charms of her face, or the opera cloak which has just exactly suited her well-molded form, simply because a week has altered the fashion. We have the old Roman presents, cheers and cakes and wine; but there is no specific meaning in them. All is hurry-scurry. Men rush from one house to another, hardly knowing whether they have paid their desires to the indoors the occasion or not; and calculate at the end of the day the number of calls they have made, and the many glasses of indifferent champagne they have taken in order to arrive at an estimate of the amount of pleasure which they fondly think they must have experienced.

Perhaps of all people in the world Americans are those above all others to whom New-Year's Day is a godsend. Yesterday, so far from being an exception to the rule, was a splendid exemplification of it. The drizzling mist of Sunday had rendered the streets impassable to all but the most sturdy pedestrians; and the cab-fare market was buoyant to a degree. Even the gentleman who "always hailed a cab to drive him to next door" would have hesitated before rushing into the fractious extravagance of taking a ride around the City yesterday. But champagne works wonders with hearts to millions, and a few noisy remonstrances made up all the opposition which the hackmen encountered to their exorbitant demands. From morning till night heavy-balls Germans and other wives and children plodded through the mud. With them the observance of New-Year's Day is more business-like a sense of duty, combined with a conservative regard for the occasion. Blocking their way, or pushing unkindly by them, thousands of "Young America" made havoc on the sidewalks, surrounded Grandpa's man, and wishing them a Happy New Year, insisted on shaking hands with their astonished victims, whose disorganized brains were totally unable to understand the cause of the enthusiasm for osculation. And then, at intervals, came groups of Irishmen, singing, shouting and yelling as they reeled along: endeavoring, for one day, at least, to forget that if they want to live during the coming year, they will have to work. At all the Roman Catholic and Episcopalian churches, crowds of devout worshipers passed the morning in a more reasonable way, the 1st of January being in itself a religious holiday, and the octave of Christmas Day.

The way in which the leading Tammany thieves spent their day was a general theme of speculation. Mr. CONNOLLY, his bail on the civil suit having been perfected, and Sheriff GUNNISON, has not to have, having gone bail for him on the criminal indictments found against him by the Grand Jury, was enabled to return to the anguished bosom of his family and dine once more without the jingle of his jailor's keys ringing in his ears. WILLIAM M. TWEED is said to have mended over the dinner table at the house of his son, 1 HANOVER, on Fifth-avenue; that noble mansion which, with unusual paternal generosity, Mr. TWEED sold to his son on mortgage for a nominal consideration, and then, overcome by magnanimity, released him from the mortgage on Christmas Day for the sake of "love and affection." Mr. SWEENY's health is still so delicate that the ivy climate above the Thames is alone sufficiently bracing. The other Democratic tonic—Zero—is at Saratoga. Surely Tammany, out of all her stealings, can find money enough to take out a patent for it. Mayor HALL having been impeached by the old Board of Aldermen, endeavored to revive his languishing appetite by recognizing the new Board. With what success is not known; neither is it known for certain that he dined a-where. Altogether the ex-Tammany politicians passed round the 1st of January, 1872, a dull one. But there are three degrees of comparison. It will be interesting a year hence to know how and in what place they passed their New-Year's Day.

The Children's Aid Society.

There were no special exercises yesterday at the institutions under the care of the Children's Aid Society. Mr. BRACE, the active Secretary, was out of town, but the superintendents of the different schools and lodging-houses managed matters capitally in the absence. Most of the holiday entertainments were held during Christmas week, when the distribution of presents of clothing and other useful articles took place. The Society received a good many contributions in money, with which to purchase the presents, through appeals which appeared in its behalf in the TIMES. At the Newsboys' Lodging-house, in Park-place, New-Year's Day afforded as much enjoyment to the numerous inmates of that place, as it did, per haps, to those in more fortunate circumstances. Extra pillaloes were accorded to the boys by the head superintendent, Mr. CRODERON, and at night the gymnasium and school-room resound and with their merry laughter and pleasant games.

At Ludlow-Street Jail.

WARDEN TEACHY, yesterday, as is usual with him on New-Year's Day, opened the doors of the jail in Ludlow-street to all callers. A long table was spread in the dining-room loaded with substantials and dainties, and handsomely set off with ornaments of confectionery. The prisoners came in for their share of the good things dispensed, and were allowed more freedom of intercourse with their friends than is usual on other days. The day was a welcome one to them, and the jailhouse of their confinement was much relieved by the arrival and departure of the crowd of visitors during the day.

Among the Germans.

With the Germans the advent of the new year is an event which at the theoretical gives a new impulse for improvement, and hopes for a brighter future in the lives of individuals, as well as in public and social affairs. The reform movement so successfully inaugurated during the old year, it is hoped and confidently expected, will be continued with renewed vigor. Hence the first day of the new year was spent by the Germans in social enjoyment and mutual congratulations, and complimentary addresses in cases where differences or even old feuds existed. The German places of amusement along the Bowery and other localities, were largely patronized by German mechanics and artisans with their families in their holiday attire. In each of these popular places of resort concerts were given in the afternoon and evening. At the Stadt Theater a Fest Representation was given, under the direction of DANIEL RAMSAUER, in the afternoon, and another in the evening, which were fully patronized. Special New-Year's festivities had also been arranged by a number of social organizations, and by many private parties. The Teutonicker Lodge, a benevolent organization, gave a ball at the National Hall, in West Forty-fourth-street, last night. At the Germania Assembly Rooms, Company E, of the Ninety-ninth Regiment, gave its seventh annual ball, which was participated in by many kindred of other German military organizations. At the Union Assembly Rooms the Sennefrauen Guard, a German social organization, gave a New Year's ball, which was fully enjoyed by all participants. Concordia Hall, in Avenue A, was the rendezvous of the Germans of the Seventeenth Ward, where they were entertained by the magic performances of a certain Italian performer.

Official Receptions.

Mr. Sheriff BRENNAN and County Clerk KEENAN received a large number of callers yesterday at their respective offices, and entertained them in grand style. Gen. SICKL, the newly-elected Register, came to his office at noon, and entertained upon his desk. He also received a number of calls during the day.

NEW-YEARS AT WASHINGTON.

Reception by President Grant—He is Gallanted by Large Numbers of Officials and Supreme Court—President Temporarily Resident of the Various Embassies.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—The official reception of the President today commenced at 12 o'clock, in accordance with the usual custom, the members of the Cabinet and the foreign Ministers being first received. The blue parlor, in which the reception took place, was brilliantly lighted and decorated with a profusion of choice flowers. Mrs. GRANT, who was attired in a crimson velvet, demi-train, white polonaise fichu, with white lace collar, was assisted in the ceremony of receiving the distinguished personages by Mrs. COLFAX, Mrs. BOUTWELL, Mrs. WRIGHT, wife of the new Attorney-General, and Mrs. CRESWELL. All the members of the Cabinet, with the ladies of their respective families, excepting Mr. ACKERMAN, were present. The Vice-President and Gens. DENT, PORTER and BABCOCK were also in attendance during the reception of the Diplomatic Corps. Miss Nellie Grant, Miss DRAXEL of Philadelphia, Mrs. Babcock, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. F. F. Dent and Miss Dent were also conspicuous among the throng of ladies, who assisted in greeting the diplomatists with their ladies, as headed by Sir EDWARD THORNTON, they entered the parlor of the Executive Mansion. Secretary FISH performed the ceremonies of introducing the members of the different Legations to the President, after which Gen. BABCOCK presented them to Mrs. GRANT and the ladies who assisted her in conducting the ceremonies of the occasion. There was a full representation of the foreign Courts. The gorgeous costumes of the diplomats and the elegant dresses of the ladies formed a picturesque and animated coup d'œil. Sir EDWARD THORNTON, Baron ESTE, Col. GORLITZ, Baron VON SCHLOZER, Señor ROSARES, with other foreign Ministers, seemed thoroughly to enjoy this the first official reception at the Executive Mansion in two years. Among the members of the Diplomatic Corps was G. H. KILBY, the first representative to this country of the Orange Free State, South Africa.

Following the Diplomatic Corps came the Judges of the Supreme Court, then the members of the District Government, headed by Gov. COOKE, and quite a large representation of the members of Congress who remain in Washington during the Holiday season, including Senators Trumbull, Fenton, Morton and Corbett, Representatives Wood, Beck, Kerr, Platt, Merrick and others. The officers of the army, navy and marine corps came next. Among them were Gens. Townsend, Dyer, Meigs, Ramsay, Stiles, Barnes, Whipple and Vincent, Judge Advocate-General Holt, Gen. McKee Dunn, Col. Mack, Lieut.-Col. Marten and others; Vice-Admiral Rowan, Commander Sands, Capt. Ammen, Commander Pillsbrowe, Pay Director Cunningham, Medical Director Foltz and others of the navy, and from the marine corps Gen. ZEILIN, Majors NICHOLSON, CARR, and SLAVER, Capt. WILLIAMS and others stationed here were present. It would be difficult, however, to mention with accuracy who among the prominent personages in Washington did participate in the President's reception. Nearly every official personage of distinction or prominence here paid his respects. The soldiers of the war of 1812, and the oldest inhabitants, following their time-honored custom, called upon the Chief Magistrate, and afterward the gates were thrown open to the public generally and a mighty rush of citizens followed. After shaking hands with the President, and exchanging the compliments of the season, the visitors passed into the East Room, which was crowded. Everything was as pleasant and agreeable as could be desired, and the remark is general that this has been the case, notwithstanding the inclement condition of the weather. After the reception at the Executive Mansion, the several heads of the Departments returned to their homes, where, in company with the ladies of their households, they received numerous visitors, including many of the Diplomatic Corps and officers of the army and navy. Secretary BOUTWELL received his friends in the lower parlors of the former's residence. A large number of officials and citizens called upon these distinguished gentlemen. The Vice-President extended a welcome to a multitude of callers. Speaker BLAINE is absent from the city, but many gentlemen left their cards at his residence. The foreign Ministers, many gentlemen holding public positions, and hundreds of private citizens, gave hospitable entertainment to friends.

The triumph of both official and private hospitality, today, has been the well-nigh utter banishment of wines and intoxicating liquors from the tables of those who have otherwise tendered a most bountiful hospitality. Nowhere, save in the circle of some few army and navy officers, where the habit is part of the life, have there been seen any tempting of the unwary at the hands of the fair entertainers. This example was notably set by the members of the Cabinet, and was always unanimously followed. Perhaps the strictly official receptions, owing to the excessively unpleasant weather for most of the day, were not so largely attended as usual, but at many private people there was all, both in point of numbers and in point of resident good cheer, that there ever is. Perhaps more, for the New-Year's season in Washington has grown into large proportions of late years, and one almost feels that he is really among the Knickerbockers. Many of the private residents, as well as those connected with politics, dispensed a rich and cordial hospitality. Among the receptions which, in addition to those of the Cabinet, were conspicuous for their elegance and heartiness, were those of Mrs. Vice-P. Bryan, Mrs. Freeman Clarke, Mrs. Gen. Delafield, Mrs. Senator Sumner, Mrs. J. W. Thomson, Mrs. Col. Bristow, Mrs. Gen. Myer, Mrs. Alex. R. Shepherd, Mrs. Senators Frelinghuysen, Corbett, Ramsey and Pomeroy, Mrs. Judge Swayne, Mrs. Admiral Porter, Mrs. Chas. Astor Bristed, Mrs. Gen. McKee Dunn and her daughter, Mrs. McKee and many others. Mrs. Williams, the wife of Attorney-General WILLIAMS held her first reception today. Secretary BRENNAP was assisted by his sisters, Mrs. WOLCOTT and Miss BRENNAP, his sister-in-law, Mrs. BOWER, and his niece, Miss WORTHINGTON. The day closed bright and clear, and the mud under foot, of which there were none upon none, was forgiven as the pleasant of the bright weather which the accurate Signal Bureau foreshadowed, and which came after weeks of gloom, before all the calling was over.

The Day in Brooklyn.

Yesterday was decidedly unpleasant for callers. It was damp and threatened rain, and the streets were a mass of filth. Nevertheless, the business of calling was commenced early, pursued industriously and kept up until a late hour. The street-cars were thronged all day with gentlemen hastening to complete their round of visits, and the Heavy-stable keepers did a thriving business, and were able to command extraordinary prices for the use of their vehicles. The callers upon the public officers were quite numerous, and the City Hall was the scene of considerable animation as the crowds passed into the Mayor's office to pay their respects, and "take something" with the outgoing and the incoming Chief Magistrate. Mass who had ability to get liquid refreshment were disappointed and disgusted instead with the reflection that much of the liquid refreshment given drinks to those who had the "cheek" to ask for them. By evening the streets became quite noisy with the shouts of those who had been too free with their potations, and the Police had considerable difficulty in persuading the unruly to behave themselves.

At midnight on Sunday, the stillness of the hour was broken by the chimes of St. Ann's, at the corner of Clinton and Livingston streets, which rang forth a merry greeting to the New Year. The music was accompanied by the firing of guns and pistols by enthusiastic men and boys, who adopted this method of saluting the year 1872.

Among the interesting ceremonies attending the close of 1871, was the "coming" of Mr. District-Attorney SAMUEL D. MORRIS, and ERVI H. FARON, his chief clerk, and the presentation of a gold pen and pencil to Col. A. C. DAVIS, who has been assisting Mr. MORRIS in the prosecution of the election frauds. The canes to Judge MORRIS and Mr. FARON were presented by the attaches of the office, and the pen and pencil to Col. DAVIS by the District-Attorney.

The Day in New-Jersey.

There were the usual number of calls and callers yesterday, but far from the usual amount of drinking, and consequent drunkenness. Fewer arrests were made at the Jersey City Police Stations than for a long time previous, and very few drunk or disorderly persons were to be seen. The absence of liquor at private houses was very noticeable. Persons who made fifteen or twenty calls only had liquor offered them at one or two houses. At most places where brandy or wine was to be found coffee was also offered, and probably not more than three per cent of the houses where refreshments were offered was strong drink placed upon the table.

The "D. K." Sociable held a ball last evening at Cooper's Hall, Jersey City, and the Workingmen's Beneficial Association at St. John's Hall. Fairs were held at the Opera-House, Pythian Hall, and the First Presbyterian Church, in Paterson. A ball was held at the Lite Heart, at Greenville.

At the Hoboken Police Station a collation was furnished and presided over by Chief BONGVLE and Ald BUSKER. During the day and evening nearly 450 callers visited the station.

A Sensation in a Missouri Theatre—A Colored Man Refused a Seat.

From the Kansas City (Mo.) Times, Dec. 30.

The "Civil Rights" law was severely strained, last night, at Coates' Opera-house. The immense structure was densely packed with ladies and gentlemen of the city and surrounding country, and not a seat was to be had for money. EDWIN FORREST was acting in "King Lear." When near the close of the second act quite a stir was created in the rear part of the parquet. It appears that a colored man, named JOHN CARTWELL, a barber, of Fort Scott, had made his way into the midst of a party of white ladies and gentlemen and sought a seat in their midst. This was refused. The negro, more foolish than wise, stood there in the centre of the audience. Loud cries of "Put him out! put him out!" were heard on all sides, and hisses filled the air. Ladies and gentlemen rose en masse to their feet. The excitement increased with the loud cries of "Put him out!" The negro, no doubt thoroughly at sea, nevertheless stood still, shaking his fist and muttering, determined to brave the impending storm. Large numbers of ladies left the theatre fearful of a riot, which seemed inevitable did the negro remain in the parquet. No attention was paid to the play. Forrest paused in his attempts and such confusion. At this juncture the officer stepped up to the negro and ordered him to leave the place, that it was the orders of the treasurer of the Opera House that he should go to the place assigned to colored people or take his money and leave the house. The man left the parquet amid a storm of hisses, cheers and yells.

At this juncture Mayor WARNER appeared on the scene, and with a surprising look of discretion for a lover of peace and order, turned the negro back and rebuked the policeman. The reappearance of the colored man, who now walked boldly into the centre of the white people, was the signal for a general uproar in the galleries. Another stampede for the door took place by those who very correctly foresaw trouble. Several officious individuals went and sat down with the negro, as if for protection. The office of Gen. Sanford, one of Cartwell's friends, went to him and advised him to comply with the rules of the Opera-house. After some expostulation, the stubborn determination of the negro was overcome. He accepted the tendered seat, and left the house, remarking that "they did not make such a fuss about niggers at Fort Scott."

Further Particulars of the Loss of the Florida.

Capt. F. C. PEREILLION, of the steam-ship Florida, one of the New-Orleans, Florida and Havana Steam-ship Company's vessels, has given the New-Orleans papers the following particulars of the loss of his ship:

"Crossed the bar at Pass-a-l'Outre on Friday, Dec. 22, at 8½ A. M., bound to Apalachicola, wind south-east, fresh breeze; at 4 P. M. wind and sea increasing; at 11 P. M. found the water gaining rapidly on the pumps, in consequence of which headed the vessel for Mobile, that being the nearest port. Next morning, Saturday, Dec. 23, a fresh gale was blowing from the southward, with a very heavy sea running, and water gaining rapidly on the pumps—all on board employed in bailing and throwing over cargo. At 8½ A. M. the water reached the furnace and extinguished the fire. At 3 A. M. found eight feet of water in the hold; the vessel in the trough of the sea and unmanageable; all hopes of getting her to land were abandoned. All hands then took to the pumps, and landed that night twenty miles to the eastward of Mobile Point. In going through the surf, the second mate's boat was swamped, and JOHN BEND, colored, the cook, was drowned. The Florida was not insured. Her equipment was not insured.

MURDER ON SHIPBOARD.

The First New-York Homicide of the New Year.

Serious Result of Yesterday's Quarrel—An Affray on Deck—One Man Killed and Another Dangerously Wounded.

An affray occurred, yesterday afternoon, on board the schooner Julia E. Gamage, now moored at the foot of Twenty-fourth-street, North River, which ended in the death of one participant, the serious wounding of another, and which appears to have been the culmination of a long series of bickering between the mate and the crew of the vessel.

The schooner, which was loaded with lime, is from Rockland, Me., where she belongs, and the troubles among the crew began even before she left that port. On the 9th of December, the Captain, R. A. PITCHER, hired one WILLIAM H. HARRIS as his mate, and by the 12th had completed his crew, among whom were SAMUEL HASSAN, a seaman, aged twenty years; ROBERT E. BURLEIGH, cook, aged about twenty-six years; and one THOMAS ANDERSON, seaman. Before this, however, HARRIS had left the vessel to go home to arrange his affairs preparatory to his departure, and during his absence Capt. PITCHER engaged one MASH as his mate in case the other did not return. When HARRIS did come back, according to the story of the Captain, he made himself so disagreeable that not only MASH but the entire crew left the vessel. The crew having been persuaded to return again abandoned the vessel in consequence of the conduct of HARRIS, but the latter going ashore with the Captain promised amendment, and the crew, among whom were HASSAN and BURLEIGH again returned to the schooner, and she was at last enabled to depart on her voyage.

Arriving at Holmes Hole, Mass., Capt. PITCHER went ashore to see some friends, leaving orders for the mate to be ready for him at a certain time. When he was ready to return to his vessel he found no boat from his ship and was compelled to take a shore boat and pull off to his vessel. He sent some of the men back to the dock with his boat, and demanding of HARRIS why he had not been sent for as directed, the latter said he had gone to shore, but the Captain not appearing at the process, moment the men had refused to wait for him, and had pulled back to the vessel. This statement of the mate seems to have become known to the men, and was the principal cause of the tragedy of yesterday. But at the moment no bad consequences followed, as the vessel departed from Holmes' Hole without any violence having occurred on board, and resumed her voyage to this port, where she arrived on Wednesday last. After entering the harbor, and before reaching her dock at the foot of Twenty-fourth-street, another difficulty occurred between the mate and men, but it passed off without any serious result.

When Capt. PITCHER was about to go ashore yesterday morning he directed the mate to have the masts scraped and then to finish unloading the vessel, so that he might go to Hoboken today to commence taking in his return cargo. These orders being repeated to the men, HASSAN with others followed the Captain on the dock and remonstrated against being compelled to work on New-Year's day. Capt. PITCHER replied that he had to pay them for the day, and saw no reason why they should not give an equivalent. HASSAN then said he supposed the Captain meant they must work or quit the vessel, and PITCHER answering affirmatively, walked away and went to the office of his agents, in Cortlandt-slip. The men, it appears, went back on board the schooner, and, refusing to obey the orders given them through the mate, dressed themselves and went ashore. They appear to have indulged in drink to some excess, and during their absence to have met the Captain and told him of the Mate having entered his private room on the vessel and ransacked his private papers. PITCHER then determined to return at once to the schooner, and report peace by discharging HARRIS. Between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon all the parties were back on the vessel, where, meantime, HARRIS had been left alone with a small German boy.

When PITCHER announced his intention of discharging him, HARRIS remonstrated, saying it would injure him greatly among his friends in Rockland, and when he found that the Captain was firm he begged to be allowed to return home in the schooner. While they were discussing this point, HASSAN approached, and, applying an opprobrious epithet to HARRIS, referred to the affair at Holmes' Hole and lessons him of telling lies to the Captain about him. HASSAN then announced his purpose of whipping HARRIS then and there, and began to attack upon him immediately, in which he was joined by BURLEIGH and ANDERSON. PITCHER says that he endeavored to separate the men, telling them three on one was unfair, but HARRIS says that PITCHER and another Captain, whom he does not know, stood by and made no effort to help him, although he called out to them not to let him be murdered. There appears to be no doubt that a short and desperate fight ensued between the three Asses, armed, on the one side, and the mate on the other, and that the latter, drawing his large pocket-knife, stabbed HASSAN to the heart, producing death almost instantly, and stabbing BURLEIGH in the left side, inflicting a wound which is very serious if not mortal. PITCHER says the mate might have jumped from the schooner and escaped the men, but HARRIS himself declares that finding himself driven to bay and in danger of his life, his first thought was to throw his assailants overboard, but finding this impossible, he had whipped out his knife and struck at them at random, and with no other purpose than to save his own life.

There is no material discrepancies as to the events after the murder. HARRIS made no attempt to escape, but, jumping from the vessel to the dock, began to wash himself in a pool of water, all the time crying murder at the top of his voice. PITCHER, meantime, went off for the Police, and finding a patrolman of the Sixteenth Precinct, and returning with him, HARRIS was taken into custody without his having made any resistance. He was at once taken to the Twenty-sixth-street Station-house, where he was locked up to await the action of the Coroner. The body of HASSAN was taken to the same place, but was subsequently removed to the dead-house at the Morgue, and BURLEIGH, whose wound was found to be very serious, was conveyed immediately to Bellevue Hospital. Capt. PITCHER and the seaman, ANDERSON, were taken into custody by direction of Sergt. FERRIS, and detained at the Sixteenth Precinct Station-house as witnesses.

The victim of this first murderous affray of the New-Year was a hale and slender young fellow, whose parents live at Rockland, Me., where all the parties reside. HARRIS is a tall, rugged, muscular man, with red hair and light complexion, and is a widower with two children. It appears that he had been actually paid off and had been dismissed from his position as mate when the deadly affray occurred. The case will be fully investigated by the Coroner this morning.

Probably Another Murder.

Among the affrays occurring as every hour in all parts of the City last night, the most serious in its results was that which happened at a late hour at the corner of Avenue A and Eighteenth-street, during which FELIX O'KRANE, twenty-one years of age, who lives at No. 411 East Nineteenth-street, was stabbed in the back by some unknown person. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital, when it was found that his wound was extremely dangerous. Like the other bloodshed, it was supposed to be due to the drunkenness which marked the day before all of its predecessors.

BROOKVILLE, Ky., Dec. 26, 1871.

Last Friday evening a party of men went to the house of GEORGE DUNCAN (colored) for the purpose of either whipping him or putting him out. Some reports have it that the party were about abusing his wife, others that he held a lease under one BROWNING, and that BROWNING and a party, under the influence of a stimulant, proposed to drive him off. They broke the door down, and DUNCAN fired into the crowd, killing BROWNING. They caught DUNCAN and took him to Brookville and locked him in jail, on the alleged charge of arson. Sunday night, about 9 o'clock, a party of fifty-two men on horseback, disguised and armed, came to Brookville from the direction of Powersville, took him from the jailer without much trouble, and chained him to a horse, and started in the direction of Powersville. DUNCAN presently got away, when one of the party struck him on the back of the head with a stone, cutting his head open. They then picked him up and hung him on a small tree about a mile and a half from Brookville, on the pike. There his body remained till Monday morning, when the Coroner cut him down and held an inquest. I could not learn the finding of the jury. The good citizens of the town denounce the act, but almost every one, when he speaks of the occurrence in that neighborhood, is very cautious, and but little information could be obtained.

Mayor Kalbfleisch's Last Official Act—The Surrender of Seventh-avenue.

The last official act of Mayor KALBFLEISCH was to present Mayor POWELL, his successor, with the subjoined document, which was done yesterday morning. The "Old Dutchman" was evidently determined that the Seventh-avenue Company should not profit by any ignorance on the part of the new Mayor, and that the schemes of the Water Board should fail if he could accomplish that object. Doubtless Mayor POWELL will give the matter due investigation before he takes final action. The following is the communication of Mayor KALBFLEISCH:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, Dec. 30, 1871.

To Hon. Samuel S. Powell, Mayor elect of the City of Brooklyn:

DEAR SIR: I take the liberty to call your attention to the fact that a warrant was issued by the Controller, on the 24 day of June last, in favor of the Seventh-avenue Pavement Company, for $11,479 66, for repairing Seventh-avenue. I refused to sign said warrant, for the reason that, in my opinion, the Water Commissioners, by doing the work, were illegal, for want of jurisdiction on their part. Twice suits have been unsuccessfully brought to compel payment, and a suit is now pending against the city relative to this matter. A certificate was given by the Water Commissioners to the Seventh-avenue Pavement Company, on the 15th day of July last, in the same amount for the same sum of $11,479 66; but, strange to say, a warrant on the Treasury for that amount was only issued on the 24 inst. It seems to me that the Company must have been aware of the illegality of the proceeding, and, knowing the difficulty in applying for the warrant after the 1st of January next, probably fearing that the Controller elect might throw it aside, they, at the long lapse of time, gave an inquiry into all the circumstances connected therewith, to refuse to issue a warrant in payment of a debt not lawfully contracted, or, to say the least, of very doubtful validity. I can conceive of no motive for delaying the demandation a warrant for so large an amount of money for nearly six months, involving great loss of interest to the parties, for for the extraordinary course pursued in not presenting the warrant at once to me for my signature except that it is intended to apply to your Honor after your inducting into office to attach your name to it. I have therefore deemed it my duty to inform your Honor of the subject, so that you may take advantage thereof, if it be for the interests of the city, to be taken on the part of the Seventh-avenue Company. The warrants were given for paving an avenue which, according to the Water Commissioners' report, it was not paved into. The Water Commissioners had no legal power to bind the city for doing this work, and an injunction laid to restrain the city from advertisements could, I have no doubt, be successfully resisted. The city has already issued a very large amount of bonds to raise money for sewerage, and, in my opinion, the time more than arrived for an end to be put to it. In this, as in all other matters, I have been actuated by no other motive than the sole desire to protect the interests of the city, and this is the only excuse I have to offer for addressing you upon the subject. I have, very respectfully,
